In the nearly two years since the overturning of Roe v. Wade there has been a wave of attacks on reproductive freedom. The Right to Contraception Act would protect reproductive freedom by codifying the right to contraception and creating a statutory right for healthcare providers to provide contraception. The bill bars states from restricting access to contraception and protects against future Supreme Court decisions that may roll back the right to contraception as recognized in Griswold v. Connecticut.

Access to contraception is fundamental to an individual’s autonomy, equality, and ability to participate in the social, economic, and political life of the nation. Contraception is essential healthcare, and access to contraception is critical to ensuring that people are free to express their sexuality, form intimate relationships, lead healthy sexual lives, and decide whether and when to have children. Every individual—regardless of their skin color, national origin, income, or zip code—should have safe, affordable access to the full range of contraceptive options. Enshrining the right to contraception into federal law is a critical step toward securing meaningful access to contraception for all people.

Again, we urge you to vote “YES” on the Right to Contraception Act, which would safeguard reproductive freedoms at a time when they are increasingly under attack. Thank you for your attention to this issue, and please reach out with any questions to Madison Roberts at mroberts@aclu.org.
