Three Things You Can Do to Demand Accountability for Torture

1

Contact the Justice Department

[www.aclu.org/accountability/action.html]

Ask Attorney General Eric Holder to expand the scope of the DOJ's criminal investigation to include senior government officials who authorized and facilitated torture.

2

Host your own "Reckoning with Torture" event

[www.aclu.org/reckoning and www.pen.org/reckoning]

Download the program script and stage your own evening of readings – at a theater or auditorium, on a university campus, at a local library or community center, or around your own coffee table.

Examine the evidence

[www.thetorturereport.org]

The Torture Report aims to give a full account of the Bush administration's torture program by bringing together all the information now in the public domain. Published serially online, the Report is updated regularly and subject to critical review and improvement as it unfolds. Visit www.thetorturereport.org to read the Report, search the documents, and join the conversation.
