Hi (b) (6)

Our colleagues at DHS S&T are conducting a study on threat assessment tools. I immediately thought of you two and thought you may be able to assist. Please see a synopsis of their study below. Would you mind if they (CC'ed above) contacted you to discuss further?

S&T is currently leading a study that aims to evaluate threat assessment programs and tools to better understand their utilization and efficacy. As part of this study, S&T aims to conduct impact evaluations with the goal to develop resources and recommendations aimed for F/S/L/T partners to enhance these programs and tools. S&T would like to engage with DHS components, state, local, and tribal LE, specifically individuals that utilize these tools, to help inform this study.

Our research study is being led by the National Counterterrorism, Innovation, Technology, and Education (NCITE) center at the University of Nebraska. The NCITE center is one of 10 centers of excellence funded by DHS, with a mission centering on counterterrorism and extremism. We would like to conduct interviews with DHS partners who work with threat assessments. The goal will be to gather input from end-users on the threat assessment tools they like, why they like (or dislike) them and potential recommendations for improvement. We can look at data and predictive validation efforts all day, but until we talk to folks that actually use the tools and models, we don't know if they have practical utility.

Thanks,

Hi (b) (6), (b) (7)(C) thanks for reaching out to (b) (6), (b) (7)(C) (who I think is joining the board at the Center). I'll admit that I don't know what a PJT is, but in reference to the folks we've reached out to, it's just the USSS folks. I wouldn't say there's a specific sector, really just personnel who do work in the threat assessment space and would be most likely to use tools to make those decisions around threats.

We did have a quick conversation this week about Air Marshals in TSA as a potentially interesting group. I'm not sure if you have any contacts with that group as we don't currently have a strong link to TSA but they would be good to connect to and this might be an in for NCITE.

Good evening (b) (6)

Thank you, and nice to virtually meet you both. I am the S&T PM on this activity and we are thrilled you would like to participate. My performer and I will reach out to you in the coming days with next step (setting a time for a virtual interview that will be no longer than 1 hour).

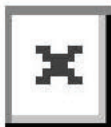

Our interview questions will be drawn from the general content areas below:

- * Previous threat assessment experience
- * Availability, utility, and forms of training and guidance
- * Given expertise in threat assessment, suggestions for improvement of tools and approaches
- * Current preferred tools (or general approaches)
- * Tools used prior that were removed or disregarded
- * Reasons/rationale for why tools are preferred over others
- * General perception around utility of tools in supporting threat assessment
- * How tools are utilized, practically-speaking
- * Perceptions around utility for tools in helping to identify novel threats
- * Perceptions around utility for tools in helping to identify non-external threats
- * Are different tools utilized for different stakeholders in differing ways (i.e., variability in application)

Looking forward to working with you both.

Very Respectfully,

(b) (6), (b) (7)(C)

With honor and integrity, we will Safeguard the American people, our homeland, and our values.

Good evening (b) (6), (b) (7)(C)

Thank you, and nice to virtually meet you. I am the S&T PM on this activity and we are thrilled you would like to participate. My performer and I will reach out to you in the coming days with next step (setting a time for a virtual interview that will be no longer than 1 hour).

Our interview questions will be drawn from the general content areas below:

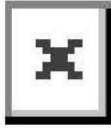

- * Previous threat assessment experience
- * Availability, utility, and forms of training and guidance
- * Given expertise in threat assessment, suggestions for improvement of tools and approaches
- * Current preferred tools (or general approaches)
- * Tools used prior that were removed or disregarded
- * Reasons/rationale for why tools are preferred over others
- * General perception around utility of tools in supporting threat assessment
- * How tools are utilized, practically-speaking
- * Perceptions around utility for tools in helping to identify novel threats
- * Perceptions around utility for tools in helping to identify non-external threats
- * Are different tools utilized for different stakeholders in differing ways (i.e., variability in application)

Looking forward to working with you.

Very Respectfully,

Hi (b) (6), (b) (7)(C)

Our colleagues at DHS S&T are conducting a study on threat assessment tools. I immediately thought of your program and thought you may be able to assist. Please see a synopsis of their study below. Would you mind if they (CC'ed above) contacted you to discuss further?

S&T is currently leading a study that aims to evaluate threat assessment programs and tools to better understand their utilization and efficacy. As part of this study, S&T aims to conduct impact evaluations with the goal to develop resources and recommendations aimed for F/S/L/T partners to enhance these programs and tools. S&T would like to engage with DHS components, state, local, and tribal LE, specifically individuals that utilize these tools, to help inform this study.

Our research study is being led by the National Counterterrorism, Innovation, Technology, and Education (NCITE) center at the University of Nebraska. The NCITE center is one of 10 centers of excellence funded by DHS, with a mission centering on counterterrorism and extremism. We would like to conduct interviews with DHS partners who work with threat assessments. The goal will be to gather input from end-users on the threat assessment tools they like, why they like (or dislike) them and potential recommendations for improvement. We can look at data and predictive validation efforts all day, but until we talk to folks that actually use the tools and models, we don't know if they have practical utility.

Thanks,

As for everyone, FYI, reaching out to the DPC to see if we can get more time on this, so we can adequately respond opposed to mailing in bullet points.

Hi Nate,

Thanks again for your time this afternoon. We look forward to collaborating with you on this important work.

As we discussed, I’ve attached a copy of the EO and included a draft message outlining our work and due dates below. Please let us know if you need anything else to raise this with your colleagues, or if there are other steps you think we should take to get started on our end.

Good afternoon colleagues,

Pursuant to EO 13985, Advancing Racial Equity and Support for Underserved Communities Through the Federal Government, the DHS Equity Task Force, led by CRCL, is assembling DHS’s one-year equity action plan, as required by the EO. (b) (5)

(b) (5)

(b) (5)

DHS's initial draft is due to the DPC November 30, 2021, and the DHS Front Office is expecting to review the draft by November 17, 2021. This doesn't leave a lot of time to develop input, but there will be an opportunity to refine the initial draft before the final draft is due January 20, 2022.

Beyond that, CRCL is seeking a more thorough look at addressing equity in this area long-term.

Hello Nate -

Hope this email finds you well. I'm following up on the email below regarding incorporating DHS's countering DVE efforts into the Department's equity action plan. The Domestic Policy Council has asked for DHS to include DHS's plans to strengthen countering DVE efforts going forward and to promote equity in countering DVE. We are hoping to include this input in our first draft of the plan, due to the DPC on November 30, of which the internal deadline is Nov 12.

Can you let us know if you have some time this week to discuss incorporating PLCY's work/plans into the equity action plan? We have already connected with CP3 and John Picarelli's team is working on some language, but we were hoping to understand PLCY's broader actions.

Thanks,

Brenda

TASKER: EO 13985 DHS Equity Action Plan: Seeking Input re/ Countering DVE Efforts

//Original Tasking Email from October 29th//

Pursuant to EO 13985, Advancing Racial Equity and Support for Underserved Communities Through the Federal Government, the DHS Equity Task Force, led by CRCL, is assembling DHS's one-year equity action plan, as required by the EO. The one-year plan primarily sets forth DHS's plans to advance equity in the eight program areas that were the subject of the Department's 200-day equity assessment, completed in August 2021.

(b) (5)

(b) (5) CRCL Chief of Staff Brenda Abdelall referred us to you as key players in the countering DVE arena at DHS, and we're seeking your insight and input for this part of the plan.

(b) (5)

(b) (5)

Input for the report should be geared toward a public audience. We're looking for about 1-2 pages of input on countering DVE in total, and we'd like to have all draft input by Friday November 12 at the latest, in order to allow for Front Office review in advance of a November 30 deadline prescribed by the Domestic Policy Council.

CP3 Outline

Over the past year, Center for Prevention Programs and Partnerships (CP3) has met with representatives of various communities, including underserved communities, to strengthen our ongoing relationships, build trust with these stakeholder groups, and better understand how CP3 can respond to their concerns and equities in relation to targeted violence and terrorism prevention programming. CP3 has engaged with faith-based organizations, houses of worship, civil right and civil liberties advocates, LGBTQ+ advocacy organizations, and organizations serving rural populations and persons of color. CP3 will continue to engage with these stakeholders to ensure prevention programming is equitable and responding to the specific challenges underserved communities may be facing.

In October 2021, CP3 held eight different listening sessions with our stakeholders, including five sessions with minority community stakeholders such as the Black, Latino, AAPI, Arab/ Middle Eastern, and LGBTQ communities. These listening sessions were held to discuss and garner their feedback on the proposed Power2Prevent (P2P) Campaign's objectives, goals, and overall communications strategy, which we are planning to launch in January 2022. The input from these communities is critical as this Campaign is focused on increasing the general public's understanding of targeted violence and terrorism while protecting civil rights and civil liberties equities and empowering individuals from all segments of society. CP3 also continues to work with the Office for Civil Rights and Civil Liberties in every content working group for the P2P campaign.

For example, CP3 has begun discussions with The Asian American Foundation (TAAF) on how best our Center, along with other components of DHS, can help support, build up, and elevate this National Network, and create a more equitable response to hate crimes against the broader, AANHPI community. CP3 previously collaborated with TAAF to host the eighth Digital Forum on Prevention, with nearly 600 attendees, from October 26-27, 2021. This Forum brought together twenty-four organizations, including Federal, nonprofit, academic, and faith-based, to participate in four different panels, covering the new domestic terrorism strategy, how faith communities can support threat prevention work, the rise of anti-AANHPI targeted violence, and the importance of protecting civil rights and liberties in prevention work. Additionally, TAAF has met with the CP3 Grants and Innovation team to discuss strategies for engaging a wider array of AAPI communities and organizations during the FY22 TVTP Grant application process. CP3 plans to host an introductory webinar on the TVTP grant program and application process with TAAF's stakeholders in December/January.

In order to further promote equity within its prevention programs, the department needs to generate greater interest and awareness of CP3's Targeted Violence and Terrorism Prevention (TVTP) among previously underserved communities (e.g., Black/Latino, infinity groups, nonprofits, local government agencies in small and mid-size communities, etc.) To improve access to the TVTP Grant Program, the CP3 Grants and Innovation team is designing a Communications Plan that will not only seek to reach more local and underserved communities, but also provide technical assistance and support to those stakeholders. For example, CP3 will host webinars on the application process, ensure deadlines and program requirements are communicated effectively to underserved communities, connect stakeholders from underserved communities to CP3 Regional Prevention Coordinators, and provide one-on-one calls to those interested stakeholders. Additional strategies to promote equity include: leveraging existing digital communication plans (e.g., website, newsletter, GovDelivery, etc.) to make content easily accessible and searchable to key audiences; providing easy-to-understand content that outlines the application process and tips for preparing a successful application; leveraging live virtual events to promote resources and authentically engage with and receive feedback and insights from key audiences; and building upon partner relationships to amplify messaging.

CP3 is also currently drafting a guide to identify baseline capabilities needed by communities in order to achieve an effective local prevention framework, and which will be consistent with U.S. laws that protects privacy, civil rights, and civil liberties. The guide has been written with the idea of “scarcity of resources” in mind, so is cognizant that communities have varying needs, gaps, and access to resources. This helps ensure the guide will be applicable and useful to all communities and stakeholders.

I actually think we are closer in our thoughts on this issue than it may appear. I largely agree with most of your comments and will provide responses to all of your comments later today, but wanted to emphasize that the toolbox product line is meant for a broad strokes overview on a topic for the first responder, who's focus on terrorism is normally only a small portion of their everyday focus. And as I said I agree with most of your comments; however, for this customer set it's needs to be boiled down to the meat/main takeaways.

I definitely want to look more into the information presented where you feel is conflicting in itself and will get back to you all on those. I just wanted to provide a quick response on the nature and format of these products and the intended customers. Thanks!!
