
From: Lewis, David
Sent: Monday, October 13, 2008 9:52 PM
To: O'Reilly, Thomas
Subject: Diagrams

There is a need for two diagrams; (1) showing the where the elements reside, and (2) is the SAR process and the relationship between shared space and eGuardian.

As we discussed the other day, the term "shared space" is what may be the problem. The fact is there is actually not shared space, but a federated query to consistent common boxes. The true name for this project is a "distributive model" utilizing a common box.

I still think our original diagram depicts the first requirement, the second is where the problem arises. The more I think about the diagrams I saw tonight it just confuses the issue that there is a "space" where data is shared. The other concern I have is why IIR is doing diagrams when there is so many other items to worry about??? They are charging us for things they were not tasked to do?? Confusing to me.

We can talk more tomorrow.

David P. Lewis
Senior Policy Advisor
US Department of Justice
Bureau of Justice Assistance
810 7th Street, NW
Washington DC. 20531
(202) 616-7829
