[redacted] ET AL;

Based on the current threat streams we are dealing with, it is imperative that no obstacles remain preventing the FCs from pushing SARs up at this time. I would recommend our message go out to the EE sites ASAP so they can begin sharing the SARs immediately.

Thanks,

Roger

We are not solely reliant on the FC to ensure compliance - when any SAR is ingested into eGuardian - including from our own field offices - each one goes through 3 different quality control checks - 3 different units look at them - all 3 checks include a look to be sure the SAR meets our privacy/civil liberties standards. So we are fine with trusting that set of checks.

The e-mail is a good idea - we will coordinate with your office to get that message out to the EE sites.

Thanks!

Great Thanks

The only other question is did the staff who entered the legacy SAR have a grasp of the privacy policy concepts when they entered the SARs that are in EG now.

If you and [redacted] are comfortable with that or want to check either randomly or all then we should turn on access as soon as the DAG releases it. You [redacted] should do an email to the 12 EE sites announcing the approval.

FYI When we loaded the legacy SARs in Va FL and NY they went back to check conformity with privacy and pulled out the ones that did not comply.

We have reviewed [redacted] incidents that have been entered to date, on a daily basis. Over time we have removed a few that were not appropriate.
