Wahhabism (Arabic: Al-Wahhābīyya الوهابية) or Wahabism is a name sometimes applied to the conservative 18th century reformist call of Sunni Islam attributed to Muhammad ibn Abd-al-Wahhab, an Islamic scholar from what is today known as Saudi Arabia, who became known for advocating a return to the practices of the first three generations of Islamic history. Wahhabism formed the creed upon which the kingdom of Saudi Arabia was founded [1] and is the dominant form of Islam found in Saudi Arabia, and Qatar, [2] as well as some pockets of Somalia, Algeria and Mauritania. [citation needed] It is now often referred to as a "sect" [2] or "branch" [3] of Islam, though its supporters reject such a designation.

Language

- Arabic is the primary factor that determines membership in the national aggregate.
- It is the characteristic of the Arabic mind to be swayed more by words than ideas and more by ideas than facts.
- Spoken words to Arabs are as music.

Stylistic Elaborateness

- ex: colloquial Arabic for thank you:
 - Allāh yukaththin khayraka – meaning: May allah increase your well-being.
 - Speedy recovery = ma alāk illā 'l – 'afīye in sha allāh which means: May there be upon you nothing but health, if allah wills.

When two Americans meet:

- One may say, “Good morning.” The other replies, “Good morning.”
- This would offend an Arabian by such an ignorant reply.
 - The first Arabian would phrase his good morning wishes as follows:
 - “Nehārkum sa’īd” which means “May your day be prosperous. To which the other will reply, “Nehārkum sa’īd wemubāarak. Meaning: “May your day be prosperous and blessed.”

“Measuring Up”

⊙ The true measure of a man is how he spends his time when he doesn't have to do anything. David O. McKay – 1873-1970

⊙ You can use most any measure when speaking of success – houses, cars, jewelry – but the measure of real success is one you can't spend; it is the way your child describes you when talking to a friend. Martin Buxbaum 1912-1991.
