I just wanted to provide a brief update. Next week, we (HQ and PG) will be hosting a VTC with the [redacted] to review and discuss the schedule for the upcoming seminar. [redacted] is setting that up; I'm not sure about the date and time, but stay tuned. I think we may be having a brief VTC with the new offices as well next week. I'll let you for sure once I hear back from [redacted]. I'd like for you to participate in that VTC as well, if you're available.

I've attached a draft schedule of the seminar fyi. All the items we previously discussed are incorporated herein, although a couple of items may have been moved around because of presenters' availability issues. Again, this is a draft, as we're still awaiting a final response from some of the presenters, but this will give you a visual of what the week will look like. I know that [redacted] team's logistics personnel have been coordinating with your office, so we should be on track.

As we discussed, the [redacted] team would like to meet with your staff on the Friday of the week of the seminar to review what worked/what didn't work, and to come up with recommendations for Mr. Mudd to carry forward, as he hopes to roll this out to the remaining offices.

I do have a question for you. On Monday and Tuesday of the seminar, you and I are scheduled to give a presentation on Thanks again for all your help. Besides the VTC(s), I'll definitely give you a call next week to address any outstanding questions/issues.
