Approximately fifty child fingerprint kits were provided to families with children ages six to twelve years of age. A similar number of FBI pamphlets on Internet Safety for Children and Parents were also distributed during the event. Additionally, about twelve individuals who spoke Arabic and showed interest and made inquiries about the FBI's Linguists Program were provided information about the program. They were further directed to the FBI's main website for the Linguist Program for their further review.

[REDACTED] who was cognizant of the FBI's continued outreach efforts with other communities added that the church serves a very diversified community and as such, has services in the Arabic language every Sunday and a service in the Burmese language once a month.

This event afforded insight and access to the Arab and Burmese communities within the San Francisco AOR.
