

Definition of intelligence as set forth by the FBI Directorate of Intelligence

The FBI and other organizations that make up the U.S. Intelligence Community use the term “intelligence” in three different ways:

- (1) Intelligence is a product that consists of information that has been refined to meet the needs of policymakers;
- (2) intelligence is also a process through which that information is identified, collected, and analyzed;

And intelligence refers to both the individual organizations that shape raw data into a finished intelligence product for the benefit of decision makers and the larger community of these organizations
