On 4 April the Kirkuk Provincial Council voted to hold a referendum to determine their final status possibly allowing Kirkuk to fall under the KRG. The resolution was passed by a majority vote despite a boycott by both Arabs and Turkoman council members. Meanwhile, the council's decision to vote in favor of a referendum is likely a rejection of Iraq's Parliament non-binding resolution that was passed earlier calling for the removal of Kurdish flags in Kirkuk. Further, Kirkuk's decision to raise the KRG flag despite Baghdad's disapproval, almost certainly will increase Arab / Kurdish tensions over the province's future post-ISIS.
