The weekly call is on Friday not tomorrow.

Thanks

How about if we let Joel finish the screen modifications, send you the screen shots and then walk you thru the process later next week. Or if you prefer you could join the weekly call tomorrow at 2:00Pm to discuss the approach. I will not be on the call tomorrow unfortunately.

I agree. I would like to have a call with the tech teams and take a look at the solution and listen to the approach.

Subject: Status of Shared Space Push to eGuardian

Tom, David

As part of our internal eGuardian Checklist, Joel tested the "push" from the portal and it was successful. We had had some earlier anomalies after [REDACTED] had left IIR but those are now fixed.

However, [REDACTED] demo'ed the current interface to [REDACTED] and [REDACTED] yesterday, and [REDACTED] identified some necessary modifications in the user process (management console) to review ISE-SARs that are candidates for submission to eGuardian and execute the push. This is due to the fact that not all sites have the capability to explicitly "flag" a SAR for submission to the JTTF.

Bottom-line, [REDACTED] and [REDACTED] worked out a solid approach that improves the user experience and accommodates all Shared Space sites whether they can set a eGuardian flag (such as in the SVT) or not. [REDACTED] estimates that he will need about 10 days to complete, test and document those changes. Because [REDACTED] indicated that they are targeting early August as the operational target date, [REDACTED] changes can be accommodated. No sense giving sites the ability to forward SARs to eGuardian when they can't be processed by the FBI yet.
