

Center for Prevention Programs and Partnerships Field Operations Overview

Vision The Center for Prevention Programs and Partnerships (CP3) seeks a resilient America where localities are united to help end targeted violence and terrorism.

Mission CP3 Regional Prevention Coordinators (RPCs) provide educational and technical assistance to the whole of society in order to establish and expand Local Prevention Frameworks that reduce the risks of targeted violence and terrorism. CP3 Field Operations team accomplishes this through: Building Partnerships and Trust by conducting stakeholder engagement and convening prevention-focused networks in communities. Increasing Awareness by delivering awareness briefings and conducting tabletop exercises to inform communities of the targeted violence threat and what role they play in prevention. Instituting Intervention by coordinating and supporting local intervention programs to stop someone who is on a pathway to violence by addressing risk and protective factors.

Local Prevention Framework A flexible model that attempts to reach all segments of the local society to increase awareness, encourage communities to think about creating or linking prevention and intervention programs, and develop programs and processes that can fill-in "gaps" within their prevention framework.
