Good Evening,

I know there is supposed to be a conference call in the morning, but I was wondering if I can get some quick answers on the below questions. Protesters are supposed to be at BWI tomorrow from 5p-9p.

My questions are:

Does customs handle any barring of entry of any of the involved passengers deplaning that are affected by the Executive Order?

Can you tell by manifest how many potential issues we having coming in tomorrow that may fit in this criteria of rejections?

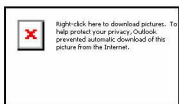

What do you do with anybody that is barred?

The protest area will be in the international area.

Will you have extra agents working tomorrow?

Subject: Executive Order - Vessel Crewmembers

Good Day Lonnie,

I wanted to share the following as an FYSA... we received guidance tonight on encountering crew members on arriving vessels from any of the 7 countries cited in the Executive Order issued Friday, January 27, 2017. Crew members will be ordered removed and escorted to their international flights.

We will be outreaching/liaising with our maritime stakeholders.

Our latest scrub on vessels arriving this weekend show no crew members of interest related to the EO arriving into Baltimore ports.

It is not known whether a Captain of the Port would be requested when encountering an entire vessel. Also... SA, I understand that both Philly and Wilmington each have a vessel arriving with crewmembers of risk (all Syrian crew). Not sure whether you cover those two ports or not. Our Area Port Director in Philly (covers Wilmington as well) will be outreaching to his USCG and others I am sure.

MEMORANDUM TO THE ACTING SECRETARY OF STATE, THE ACTING ATTORNEY GENERAL, AND THE SECRETARY OF HOMELAND SECURITY

FROM: Donald F. McGahn II – Counsel to the President

SUBJECT: Authoritative Guidance on Executive Order Entitled “Protecting the Nation from Foreign Terrorist Entry into the United States” (Jan. 27, 2017)

Section 3(c) of the Executive Order entitled “Protecting the Nation from Foreign Terrorist Entry into the United States” (Jan. 27, 2017) suspends for 90 days the entry into the United States of certain aliens from countries referred to in section 217(a)(12) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (INA), 8 U.S.C. 1187(a)(12). Section 3(e) of the order directs the Secretary of Homeland Security, in consultation with the Secretary of State, to submit to the President a list of countries recommended for inclusion on a Presidential proclamation that would prohibit the entry of certain foreign nationals from countries that do not provide information needed to adjudicate visas, admissions, or other benefits under the INA.

I understand that there has been reasonable uncertainty about whether those provisions apply to lawful permanent residents of the United States. Accordingly, to remove any confusion, I now clarify that Sections 3(c) and 3(e) do not apply to such individuals. Please immediately convey this interpretive guidance to all individuals responsible for the administration and implementation of the Executive Order.

Four of the Iranians flew back on Tuesday. But it seems one couple is still hoping to be able to get to the US and has stayed behind in Amsterdam. Could you give us a comment on what the embassy is doing to try to help them? Many thanks, Jo

Hi (b)(6)

Happy New Year. Hope all is well, amid these turbulent times. I have a query about the six Iranians stuck in transit at Schiphol since Saturday. What is the official US position on their entry, I believe at least two of them have J1 visas? Has anyone from the embassy been in touch with them? And what advice are you giving them? Many thanks, (b)(6)

Good afternoon... (b)(6), (b)(7)(C), (b)(7)(E) has sparked interest from CBP Senior Leadership. Can you please provide bullets on this event, to include a timeline of his "detention, as soon as possible.

<http://wjla.com/news/local/former-norwegian-prime-minister-held-for-questioning-at-dulles-airport> DULLES, Va. (ABC7) — A former prime minister of Norway tells ABC7 he was questioned and prevented from leaving Dulles Airport for about an hour Tuesday, apparently because he had visited Iran in 2014.

Kjell Magne Bondevik served as prime minister of Norway two separate times, from 1997-2000 and 2001-2005. He flew into Dulles Airport from Europe Tuesday afternoon and says he was not immediately allowed to leave after customs agents saw in his passport that he had been to Iran.

He showed ABC7 that his passport also indicates he is the former prime minister of Norway, a U.S. ally. "Of course I fully understand the fear of letting terrorists come into this country," Bondevik told ABC7 outside the Washington Hilton Wednesday night.

But, he said, it should have been obvious he's not a terrorist.

"It should be enough when they found that I have a diplomatic passport, [that I'm a] former prime minister," Bondevik said. "That should be enough for them to understand that I don't represent any problem or threat to this country and [to] let me go immediately, but they didn't."

Instead, Bondevik says he was placed in a room with travelers from the Middle East and Africa who were also facing extra scrutiny. He says he had to sit and wait for about 40 minutes, and then he was questioned for about 20 minutes regarding a trip to Iran in 2014.

Bondevik is president of a human rights organization called The Oslo Center, and in 2014 he went to Iran to speak at a human rights conference there.

Although President Trump's controversial temporary travel ban has led to extra scrutiny of many travelers in the past week, Bondevik says he was told the scrutiny he received had nothing to do with it. Instead, it was related to a 2015 law signed by President Obama.

The law was signed in the wake of terrorist attacks in California and Paris and was aimed at protecting the U.S. from terrorists. It places extra restrictions on some citizens from 38 countries -- including Norway -- that are part of the U.S.'s Visa Waiver Program.

Citizens of those countries normally do not need a visa to visit the U.S. for up to 90 days, but because of the law they now do need a visa if they have been to Iran, Iraq, Sudan, Syria, Libya, Somalia or Yemen since March 2011. Those are the same seven countries Trump included in his temporary travel ban.

The Department of Homeland Security's website says there are exceptions to the 2015 law that are granted on a case-by-case basis. Those exceptions include people who have traveled to Iran or the other six countries on behalf of international or regional organizations. Bondevik says his office contacted the U.S. Embassy in Oslo prior to his trip this week and was told his passport and a separate electronic travel authorization (called ESTA) would be sufficient to enter the United States. "I was surprised, and I was provoked," he said about being set aside for questioning. "What will the reputation of the U.S. be if this happens not only to me, but also to other international leaders?"

A spokesperson with U.S. Customs and Border Protection says "CBP is prohibited by privacy laws from discussing specifics of any individual's admissibility review." Bondevik says he contacted the Norwegian Embassy in D.C. after what happened. A spokesperson said the embassy was "happy that things were sorted out." ABC7 was told by a source that a wait of an hour is not considered unusual for people entering the country who receive "secondary examinations." Bondevik came to the United States to attend Thursday morning's National Prayer Breakfast at the Washington Hilton.

The Department of Homeland Security's website says there are exceptions to the 2015 law that are granted on a case-by-case basis. Those exceptions include people who have traveled to Iran or the other six countries on behalf of international or regional organizations.

Bondevik says his office contacted the U.S. Embassy in Oslo prior to his trip this week and was told his passport and a separate electronic travel authorization (called ESTA) would be sufficient to enter the United States.

"I was surprised, and I was provoked," he said about being set aside for questioning. "What will the reputation of the U.S. be if this happens not only to me, but also to other international leaders?"

A spokesperson with U.S. Customs and Border Protection says "CBP is prohibited by privacy laws from discussing specifics of any individual's admissibility review."

Bondevik says he contacted the Norwegian Embassy in D.C. after what happened. A spokesperson said the embassy was "happy that things were sorted out."

ABC7 was told by a source that a wait of an hour is not considered unusual for people entering the country who receive "secondary examinations."

Bondevik came to the United States to attend Thursday morning's National Prayer Breakfast at the Washington Hilton.
