(11:59 a.m., proceedings commenced).

THE COURT: We're here on the record in Steven Fish, et al., versus Kris Kobach. The case number is 16-2105. And appearing for the plaintiff are Mr. Bonney, Mr. Danjuma, Mr. Ho, Ms. Lakin, and Ms. Liu. Appearing for the defendant is Mr. Kobach and Mr. Roe.

Did I miss anyone who's appearing for either plaintiff or defendant? Okay. I hear not.

All right. So several matters that I'd like to cover with you in today's hearing. And in advance of this hearing, I had sent to plaintiff and defendant a revised notice and with revisions that reflected your submissions but also reflected some modifications that I made to the things that you submitted.

And just to sort of summarize what those modifications are, in particular the ones that I added, I thought it important to draft a more detailed and conspicuous paragraph at the beginning of the notice as opposed to the middle of the notice, so I changed that to the beginning, that acknowledges that the person has received prior notices or information.

Because, of course, when they received these prior notices, they were told that they needed to produce proof of citizenship. And so I think it's important that this new notice, in the most conspicuous way possible, tells them that they need to disregard prior notices and that this new notice replaces and supersedes any information they previously provided. So I tried to modify the language to make it more clear and to move it to the beginning of the notice.

And then the second paragraph of the notice tracks and revises the parties' first paragraph. It refers to this as a revised notice. And I thought, also, that whereas the prior notice I think said that there was a court ruling, but, you know, basically was talking about the state of all of this at that time, that there was a court ruling, but there was a pending case before the Tenth Circuit, et cetera, et cetera, we needed to revise that language, I thought, to-- to capture the current state, which is that there are, you know, federal and-- well, that there had been court decisions now that resolved this at least at the injunctive stage. So I thought we needed to-- to make sure that that was clear.

I think the defendant wanted a reference to a court ruling or due to recent court rulings, so we made it plural. Rather than "a court ruling," we said, "due to recent court rulings," to reflect that there have been recent court rulings in a variety of jurisdictions.

And then rather than saying the person is "deemed to be registered and qualified to vote for all offices," I changed the language to "deemed fully registered and eligible to vote for all offices." And I recognize that the language in Judge Hendricks' order said "qualified" instead of "eligible," but the Secretary's prior notice had used the term "eligible." And I think, again, we want this to be as consistent and as clear as it could be. So rather than changing the word from "eligible" to "qualified," since "eligible" was used before I thought that's the word we ought to use now.

I also added language declaring that the person's name is on the list of registered voters, that they will be given a standard ballot at their polling place, that they can request an advance mail—in ballot. I mean, consistent with their rights as registered voters, they can do all of that. And I thought it important to— to add that language because, of course, either through prior notices or just through the public arena, reading newspapers and things the Secretary has stated to the public through the media, they might have some concern about provisional ballots or something like that. So I wanted to make that clear.

And then finally, I added further detail to the instructions on finding a polling place. Because we went on the website and— and when you go on the website, the home page or the landing page does not—there's nothing on that particular page that tells someone where to go. So I just wanted to get— let them know in the notice they could click on this additional link that would take them to that.

My concern being that, you know, some voters are not computer literate, some are elderly, some may not even own computers and are using somebody else's.

So anyway, to the extent they're doing this online, I thought it would be helpful to add this additional step for them.

So I have some additional questions and issues I want to take up with you, but I wanted to start with just this summary of how I came to the language that I drafted and changed or supplemented your language. So I want to start with just getting any response or any additional suggestions from the parties.

So I'll start with plaintiff, anyone on their team that wants to start. Just identify yourself by name, though.

MR. DANJUMA: Yes, Your Honor. This is Orion Danjuma. And obviously our principal concern now is that covered voters haven't received the most critical notice they need. And I-- we think that's a serious problem. We certainly appreciate the Court's detailed attention to that issue.

The-- the points that you've raised here we agree with. We don't dispute sort of any of the language that you've added. And I think the parties had some differences over how bold and how clear the text would be, and we agree that it should sort of lay out the case that prior notice should be disregarded and that this is what will happen going forward.

There's just a couple of notes that I might add, and I'm not sure if it's relevant to the language or not, but we do want to address what notice individuals received going forward. So if you apply at a DMV tomorrow or, you know, the next day, as many people are, that those individuals won't have received prior notice. They will not yet have received the kind of confusing notice that was sent out in the middle of the summer. And we just want to be very sure that they receive something that's identical to what other voters receive.

That may be a separate issue. But in terms of the language that— that the Court has added, we're—we're in agreement with essentially everything. The only small note is that in the very first sentence, it says that, "You are receiving this revised official notice because you have applied to register to vote and you previously received," we might say, "you may have received" that, because some individuals might've missed the notice. But that's a minor distinction I-- I wouldn't imagine that the Secretary would disagree with.

THE COURT: Okay. I think that's well noted in case they didn't receive a prior notice. Your concern about notices-- what notice at the DMV is another question and it is-- it is subsumed in some additional questions I have about other notices and other procedures going forward. So we'll-- I'll come

Mr. Kobach, your view on the revised notice.

MR. KOBACH: Your Honor, we don't have many objections. Certainly it is perfectly fine with us if you wish to add the bold text.

back around to that, Mr. Danjuma.

There is one substantive change we would advise and then one stylistic one. The substantive one is on the second paragraph, the last sentence which begins, "Your name is included." That sentence as it is currently worded does not describe all of the possibilities, and so it's technically not accurate as it stands.

So either you could-- as the following-- we could describe the standard ballot at the polling place or advance ballot in-- mail-in ballot, there's another one, or you may vote an advance ballot in person.

THE COURT: Correct. Yes.

MR. KOBACH: And then there's also a fourth possibility. Or you may vote a provisional ballot at a polling place other than your own.

I would suggest you just-- it would be a long run-on sentence describing four possibilities.

If-- you normally don't put in a notice, you know, about your registrations status, but if you want to include that, then you'd have to include all the possibilities.

Or you could just end the sentence after the phrase "your name is included on the Kansas list of registered voters."

As for the minor stylistic one, I just think the last sentence of the third paragraph "or you may call my office" probably should be "this office" because some of the counties will not sign it— the name of the clerk, it would rather be just, you know, Sherman County election office. So "my" might be, you know, grammatically incorrect if you don't have a person there.

THE COURT: Okay. Yeah, I would agree with that stylistic change.

Back up to the possibilities. I think it's important to let them know, because there's been-- I don't want there to be confusion about standard versus provisional ballots. So I think it's important to let them know that they will be given a standard ballot at their polling place or they can request an advance mail-in ballot or they may vote in advance.
            I-- I am somewhat reluctant to talk about provisional ballots at -- other than their polling place.
That may be their right, but I'm a little concerned that introducing that fourth way revises some confusion about provisional ballots.
            So I'm inclined to just add this additional -- one of the additional things you mentioned, Mr. Kobach, and that is they can vote in advance.
something that suggests -- they can vote in advance in accordance with their -- I don't want to use that language exactly, but in accordance with the procedures in their county or the availability in their county.
Every county is different in terms of advance voting and where that happens. Correct?
            MR. KOBACH: Yeah, right. So they all allow

MR. KOBACH: Yeah, right. So they all allow it. And at a minimum, advance voting is allowed at the county clerk's office-- (reporter interruption).

THE COURT: I'm sorry. Somebody needs to

1 mute their phone, unless it's Mr. Kobach because he's 2
    speaking, because we're getting some background noise.
3
                Okay. Go ahead, Mr. Kobach.
                MR. KOBACH: Your Honor, in all 105 counties
    you can vote advance in person. At a minimum, the county clerk's office has it. And at a maximum, in 6
7
    places like Johnson County, I believe they -- they have 8 eight locations. So you might just want to add that-- (Interference due to background noise).
10
                MR. KOBACH: You might just want to add that 11
    phrase "or you may vote an advance ballot in person." 12
                THE COURT: Okay. "Or you may vote in 13 advance in person." Yeah, I don't think we need to get 14 into the particulars. This notice isn't designed to give them all of the instructions that they have 15
16
    otherwise in terms of where they can go to vote, et 17
    cetera.
18
                Okay. Remind everyone, mute your phones, 19
    please. This background noise is making it difficult 20 for the court reporter to hear what the speaker is 21 saying.
22
                Okay. All right. So we'll make those 23
    revisions.
24
                And now I have some additional questions.
2.5
    Will a version of this notice be posted on the

Secretary's website in both English and Spanish? I mean, will this notice be in both English and Spanish? I think that's consistent with what you do now, is it not? You have--

MR. KOBACH: Your Honor, no, it's not, because this notice would only apply to roughly 17,000 people at this point. So of the 1.7 million registered voters, 99 percent of them would not-- you know, this might be confusing to them. We normally wouldn't post a notice like this on the website because-- is, whatever notice you do have on the website now is probably needing modification as well. Even though it's not specific to the 17,000, if you have a notice on the website now that says you have to have proof of citizenship, et cetera, that needs to be modified to be consistent with this and with the law as it stands right now.

MR. KOBACH: We-- we do have an entire website that describes all of the procedures for registering to vote in Kansas. Are you-- we can certainly bring that up-to-date. We're a little concerned with-- I'm not quite sure how you would word it to say if you are in this category of people, then here's your different situation.

                THE COURT:
                           Well, right now-- so right now 2
    on your website for people that are registering at the 3 DMV or I guess for that matter registering by mailing in a federal form, that language needs to be changed to 4
5
    reflect what the law is. And that is, they don't have 6
    to produce proof of citizenship.
7
                MR. KOBACH: I'm not-- we can double-check.
8
    I'm not sure if our-- I'm not sure if our website even goes into differences at the DMV or use of a federal 9
10
    form.
11
                THE COURT: Okay. Well, has plaintiff 12 looked at the website?
                MR. DANJUMA: Your Honor-- 13
14
                THE COURT: Do you want to weigh in on this 15 or not?
16
                MR. DANJUMA: I'm sorry? I-- yeah, I'm 17
    getting interference. I didn't hear you, Your Honor.
18
                THE COURT: Is this Mr. Danjuma?
19
                MR. DANJUMA: Yes.
20
                THE COURT: Have you looked at the website?
21
    I mean, are you concerned about any of the noticing on 22
    the website?
23
                MR. DANJUMA: Yes. We have looked at the 24
    website and it does -- the voter ID provisions do give 2.5
    information that is incorrect. And it's inconsistent with the Court's-- with these multiple court rulings at this point. And we think that it has to be updated to-- to be consistent with the law.

I don't know that— why that would be so technically difficult. I think a notice can be provided that— it's as simple as altering the web page and saying that you do not need to provide documented proof of citizenship when you register through these means and providing a copy of this— the notice that the Court has produced for— with a link that says that it's for individuals who have already registered to vote in these locations.

I think that that would eliminate confusion. And as individuals are-- are continuing to register to vote in high numbers now, it would clarify what their status is in advance.

THE COURT: It absolutely has to be amended to reflect the-- these rulings. So, you know, and I haven't-- I don't have a screenshot, I don't know what that looks like. But it absolutely has to be corrected. It has to be corrected forthwith for new registrants, for registrants that receive this notice and decide to go online and now see something contrary to what this notice says.

I mean, we're trying to avoid confusion at all costs. So that needs to be done, Mr. Kobach, as quickly as possible. I would say by the end of the week it needs to be accomplished. Hopefully it's just a matter of deleting some language.

Okay. And that's why I mentioned the Spanish, because I know that on your website there's something that is in both English and Spanish, so I was just suggesting that they need to be the same. And they both need to be modified to reflect these rulings if, in fact, they say something about you have to provide proof of citizenship.

MR. DANJUMA: And, Your Honor, just briefly, this is Orion again. It's not just the Secretary of State's Office. The proof of citizenship requirement is also listed on-- or we've reviewed it on the Got Voter ID website, which is a separate website that lists several requirements for voting.

So that requirement which says, "evidence required in order to register to vote" would also need to be changed.

THE COURT: Okay. So, Mr. Kobach, what I'd ask you to do is forthwith make these changes on the Secretary of State website, the vote-- My Vote Info, et cetera, website, any other websites you're utilizing, even county election offices. And then send me I would say next week sometime just by e-mail and-- and copy plaintiff's counsel just that this has been complied with.

Okay. So that's that. And then here's-here's another question I have. Most of us receive these postcards through the mail that tells us where our precinct is and where to go vote. And I was wondering what-- so the-- the 17,000 people, or however many it is, that are going to get the notice, are they going to also receive the postcard? I mean, how will they know where to go vote?

MR. KOBACH: Your Honor, this is Kris Kobach. They will get the same notice that others-that other voters get, that it notifies you of your polling place.

THE COURT: Okay. Great. And it doesn't matter that this is happening at this point in October, they should— they should still be on track for getting the postcards in the mail; is that correct?

MR. KOBACH: Your Honor, you mentioned a moment ago to update county websites too. I-- it would be very difficult for this office to be responsible for the content of all 105 county's websites as well. So I'm-- we can certainly update our websites to reflect this information. But, you know, we don't control the counties. So we can encourage them to make similar modifications, but I-- I hope the Court is not holding us responsible for websites we don't control.

THE COURT: Well, I'm holding you responsible for directing them to and mandating them to, because you're the Secretary of State. And you are the-- you are the No. 1 authority and-- and it is your responsibility to manage elections in Kansas.

So I know a lot of it is administered at the county level, but I think you have the authority to mandate that they do it. And then— and then tell them to tell you that they've complied, so that you can share that with the Court. I know you can't physically go perhaps to the county election office and do it yourself, but you certainly can direct and mandate them to do it, just like you did tell them what to do when the, you know, DPOC law came into being. I mean, you directed them what to do in response to that. So I think you have to direct them what to do in response to this as well.

MR. KOBACH: We will do our best, Your Honor. Just bear in mind sometimes some counties are faster than others when it comes to complying with instructions from this office.

THE COURT: Okay, I understand.

MR. DANJUMA: And, Your Honor, this is Orion And if we-- if plaintiffs could be heard Danjuma again. just briefly on this point as well.

Okay.

THE COURT: MR. DANJUMA:

We have received word from individuals who have contacted the Shawnee County Election Office in Topeka. And those callers were told by state officials that NVRA registrants would not have their votes counted for state and local elections. I don't raise that to sort of lay that at Mr. Kobach's feet, particularly as, you know, this -- the issues of compliance have been evolving this week.

But we do want to be very sure that at some point very soon Mr. Kobach does issue an instruction to all county election officials to advise callers that they are registered and may participate in all elections, because it-- it doesn't appear that that's happened yet and that is continuing to cause problems.

THE COURT: All right. Well, apparently-it sounds like there's confusion in the county election offices. And that needs to be cured. And I think that will be cured with a directive from you, Mr. Kobach. mean, it's all over the newspapers, I would hope those folks would read the newspapers and understand that there have been these rulings.

1 (Interference from background noise). 2 THE COURT: But if they don't, you know, 3 they don't. They have-- they take their direction from 4 you on this. And I think it's your responsibility to give them that direction. I understand some of them may 5 be able to change it tomorrow and some it may take 6 7 longer. But they've got to do it. And for sure when 8 people are calling in, because people are confused -- I mean, we've had calls to this office. And I'm not in a 9 10 position to take calls and answer questions. 11 But if people are calling their county 12 election offices, they need to get the right election offices, they need to get the right information. And the only way apparently that's going to happen in some counties is if you set them straight. So I expect you to do that, Mr. Kobach, that's your job obviously. All right.

MR. KOBACH: We will continue to notify the counties of what their responsibilities are and what the rules are.

THE COURT: Okay. All right. So returning to what Mr. Danjuma brought up at the outset, and that is other notices that— and we've talked about the website obviously. Are there any other media through which notices are given, other than at the point of registration, such as at the DMV, that we need to be concerned about?

So like when somebody goes into the DMV, I mean, isn't there something that's posted that they can register? And I don't know if it has DPOC language on it or not, but if that notice at the DMV says that, obviously that needs to be modified.

Mr. Kobach, do you know?

MR. KOBACH: Your Honor, when they are—when they register at the DMV, they are given a notice that says that if you have not yet provided proof of citizenship, you should do so.

I would note that— that this Court's jurisdiction is only over registration for federal elections. We have only a temporary restraining order in effect regarding state and location elections, so—and then that may— that may change.

So I would hesitate to discourage voters from providing proof of citizenship. If the state court decision changes, you will have people who have not been notified that, hey, if you want to vote in all elections, you need to get your proof of citizenship in. So I think it would be a grave disservice to voters to discourage them or not notify them that under Kansas law they should provide proof of citizenship.

THE COURT: Well, they can't do that at the DMV anyway. So consistent with my order, the language needs to be taken out, period.

2.5

The way this-- the law is now, you have a preliminary injunction that's been affirmed by the Tenth Circuit, and that's going to be the state of law on election day in Kansas. You have apparently-- I thought it was a preliminary injunction, but if it's a temporary restraining order in the state court, it's effective now, it's the law right now. Presumably it will be through election day.

We're going to operate like it is because, I mean, I'm not going to assume that it's not. And, therefore, the DPOC language needs to come out of the materials at the DMV as well. Mr.-- I mean, rather, Judge Hendricks' order says, "Defendant," meaning Mr. Kobach, "is ordered to instruct the local election officials to give timely notice to the voters impacted by the federal court rulings in Fish v. Kobach, League of Women Voters versus Newby, and be unequivocally instructed that they are deemed registered and qualified," we've already talked about qualified, I think it's eligible, "to vote for the appropriate local, state, and federal elections for purposes of the November 8th, 2016 general election, subject only to further official notice."

So the language at the DMV has to say you do we'll deal with that when we deal with it. But we're

            So those -- those also need to be changed, and I'm going to be looking for you-- for an e-mail

you?
            MR. DANJUMA: Well, Your Honor, we just-- I'm sorry, this is Orion Danjuma again. We just wanted to check the -- to ensure that we were in agreement about what new voters will-- new DMV registrants will receive, the notice they'd receive. And I guess-- I guess the best way to resolve that is to either have a

                MR. KOBACH: Your Honor, we can-- we 5
    obviously have to coordinate with the Department of 6
    Revenue as to the notice of -- they're the ones actually 7 providing it physically to the registrants, or the 8 applicants I should say, at the DMV. And so, yeah, we can provide revised wording to -- to counsel.
9
10
                THE COURT: Okay. That would be-- that 11 would be great. Send it to me by e-mail as well. And 12 hopefully, you know, you've-- you'll be able to 13 communicate all of this, as well as assurances of 14 compliance by the county and, you know, an assurance 15
    that you've instructed them obviously by next week sometime. And that will put a-- an end to this for now 16
17
    and go forward with this lawsuit I suppose, but at least 18
    we won't have to deal with any other issues before 19
    November 8th.
20
                Okay. Mr. Kobach, was there anything else 21 that you wanted to discuss today?
22
                MR. KOBACH: No, Your Honor.
23
                THE COURT: Okay. All right.
24
    appreciate you all being available for the hearing.
2.5
    hopefully we won't be talking again before November 8th.

But obviously if something comes up, my door is open and 1
    we'll hear from you. Thank you all. I'll disconnect.

 3
                 MR. DANJUMA: Thank you, Your Honor.
                 THE COURT: Thank you.
