DECLARATION OF BROOKE WATSON

I, Brooke Watson, declare as follows:

1. I have personal knowledge of the following facts. If called to testify, I could and would do so competently.

2. I am a Senior Data Scientist at the American Civil Liberties Union Foundation (“ACLU”), where I conduct quantitative analyses, perform statistical hypothesis tests, and use standard data science and machine learning techniques to study the impacts of government policies on populations.

3. Attached hereto as exhibits are true and correct copies of the following:

4. I hold a Master’s degree in Epidemiology from the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine and a Bachelor’s degree in Microbiology from the University of Tennessee. I have spent over seven years conducting descriptive and predictive modeling and analytics and using statistical techniques to make causal inferences. See Ex. A. I have published my work in peer-reviewed journals and presented at academic conferences.

5. Before joining the ACLU, I worked as a Research Scientist at the nonprofit organization EcoHealth Alliance. There, I used advanced mathematical models and statistical techniques to research infectious disease emergence.

6. Since joining the ACLU, I have submitted sworn declarations to courts explaining my statistical analyses of data. I have not testified at trial or by deposition. In the course of my work, I routinely use data from the U.S. Census Bureau or the American Community Survey, which I describe below.

7. I used the statistical programming software, R, to conduct all analyses discussed in this Declaration. R is an open-source programming language and software environment used widely among statisticians and data scientists to analyze data.

I. Assignments

8. My colleagues at the American Civil Liberties Union Foundation of South Carolina (“ACLU-SC”), Susan Dunn and Patrick Brooks, obtained, via South Carolina Freedom of Information Act (“FOIA”) requests, data from the South Carolina Department of Motor Vehicles (“DMV”) concerning people with driver’s licenses suspended by the DMV for failure to pay a traffic ticket (“FTPTT”). See Declaration of Susan Dunn (“Dunn Decl.”), ECF No. 13; Declaration of Patrick Brooks (“Brooks Decl.”), ECF No. 14.

9. Nusrat Choudhury of the ACLU asked me to analyze these data to determine the following: (a) whether there is a relationship between poverty and the DMV’s suspension of drivers’ licenses for failure to pay a traffic ticket (“Assignment #1”); (b) whether there is a difference in the rates at which the DMV suspends the driver’s licenses of Black people and white people for failure to pay a traffic ticket (“Assignment #2”); and (c) the rate at which people with driver’s licenses suspended by the DMV for failure to pay a traffic ticket were able to pay to reinstate their driver’s licenses (Assignment #3).

10. I am a salaried employee of the ACLU and am not being compensated separately for my work related to this Declaration or any testimony I may provide in this matter.

II. The DMV's Data on Drivers' License Suspension for Failure to Pay a Traffic Ticket

11. ACLU attorneys provided me with data obtained by Ms. Dunn and Mr. Brooks from the DMV concerning the number of suspensions for failure to pay a traffic ticket as of May 31, 2019 ("May 2019 Data"). See Brooks Decl. Ex. C, ECF No. 14-3 (letter describing the May 2019 data).

12. The DMV provided the May 2019 Data in response to an ACLU-SC public records request described in Mr. Brooks' Declaration, which is on file with the Court. Brooks Decl., Ex. A, ECF No. 14-1.

13. As described in the DMV's response to Mr. Brooks' public records request, "[t]he data shows [sic] that as of May 31, 2019, 192,263 people were suspended for failure to pay traffic tickets. There were 297,826 tickets causing suspensions among those 192,263 people." Brooks Decl., Ex. C, ECF No. 14-3.

14. The May 2019 Data include a Microsoft Excel worksheet that provides the total number of driver's license suspensions for failure to pay a traffic ticket for each court that reported an unpaid ticket leading to an FTPTT suspension by the DMV ("May 2019 Court-Level Data"). See Ex. B.

15. The May 2019 Court-Level Data provides the following information: "Suspension Description," "Court Name," "Court City," "Court State" [sic], and "Count." It is my understanding that the "Count" column provides the total number of driver's license suspensions for failure to pay a traffic ticket as of May 31, 2019, where the underlying traffic case was handled by the court identified on the same line. See id.

16. The May 2019 Court-Level Data contains a large number of misspellings and data entry errors. For example, the city of Abbeville, South Carolina, is alternately spelled

“ABBEVILLE,” “ABBEVILLE,” “ABBEVILL,” “ABBEVILLES,” “ABBEVILLIE,”
“ABBLEVILLE,” and “ABEEVILLE.”

17. To resolve the large number of misspellings contained in the May 2019 Court-Level Data, I used standard data cleaning practices to aggregate the suspensions by city, fix the spellings of city names, and match each city name to a Census Place.¹ Throughout the rest of this Declaration and the attached exhibits, I will use the DMV’s terminology of “city” to refer to the geographical concept of “Census Place,” which includes cities, towns, villages, and unincorporated areas.

18. I describe the data cleaning process in Appendix 1 to this Declaration. I also attach to this Declaration a table providing the cleaned city names following application of these data cleaning practices to the May 2019 Court-Level Data. See Ex. C.

III. Key Terms

19. In this Declaration, I define “suspension rate” as the count of all current outstanding suspensions in a given geography divided by the driving-age population in that geography. Suspension rates permit comparison of the differential scope and burden of driver’s license suspensions in geographies (e.g., cities) with different population sizes.

20. The FTPTT suspension rate in City A could be higher than the FTPTT suspension rate in City B for several reasons. For example, police in City A could issue traffic tickets more frequently than police in City B. The comparatively larger volume of traffic tickets in City A as compared to City B could lead to larger per capita traffic fine burdens that many people in City

A cannot pay, which could then contribute to a higher rate of FTPTT suspension in City A as compared to City B. Alternatively, or additionally, people with FTPTT suspensions in City A may suffer disproportionately from poverty, which would make it more difficult for them to pay traffic fines and lead to greater rates of driver's license suspension for failure to pay traffic tickets than in City B.

21. In contrast to the term "suspension rate," I use the term "suspension risk" to describe the count of individuals who currently have an FTPTT suspension on their driver's license in a geography divided by the total population of that geography. An individual can only count once toward suspension risk, regardless of the number of FTPTT suspensions on the individual's driver's license.

22. A racial risk ratio is a measure of the risk of driver's license suspension for failure to pay a traffic ticket among people of one racial group compared to a baseline risk level of another racial group.

IV. Relationship Between Poverty and the Suspension of Driver's Licenses for Failure to Pay a Traffic Ticket in South Carolina (Assignment #1)

23. In order to determine whether there is a relationship between poverty and the DMV's FTPTT suspensions (Assignment #1), I first calculated the rate of driver's license suspension for failure to pay a traffic ticket for each South Carolina city in the May 2019 Court-Level Data. Second, I calculated the poverty rate for those same cities. Third, I conducted a linear regression analysis to determine if there is a correlation between the city-level poverty rate and FTPTT suspension rate as described below.

24. In order to calculate the city-level FTPTT suspension rate for the first step of this analysis, it is necessary to determine the total number of suspensions in each South Carolina city identified in the May 2019 Court-Level Data. To do this, I aggregated the "Count" column of the data at the city level, after cleaning the names of the cities in the May 2019 Court-Level Data.

25. I obtained statistics about the total number of people in each South Carolina city age 16 or older, which is the legal driving age in the state,² from the 2017 5-Year American Community Survey (“ACS”), published by the U.S. Census Bureau (“Census Bureau”). The ACS is the primary source of standardized national information about the U.S. population. 2017 is the most recent year that results of the ACS have been published at the time of this analysis.

26. I accessed the ACS data through the Census Bureau’s application programming interface (“API”), which provides machine-readable access to many datasets that the Census Bureau has publicly released, including the 2017 ACS. I accessed this API via an application in the R programming language called “tidycensus.”³

27. To calculate FTPTT suspension rates at the city level, I divided the city-level count of suspensions for failure to pay a traffic ticket by the city-level population age 16 or older. See Ex. D.

28. For the second step of this analysis, I calculated the city-level poverty rates in South Carolina. The table set forth in Exhibit E to this Declaration illustrates this calculation. I divided the count of individuals in each city living below 100% of the Census Bureau’s Poverty

² I focus on the total population age 16 or older because this age group is eligible to drive and therefore at risk of having driver’s licenses suspended for failure to pay traffic tickets. South Carolina residents are eligible for a full (i.e., unrestricted) driver’s license at age 17, but 16-year-olds may obtain a restricted driver’s license that permits them to legally drive, subject to certain restrictions. See First Driver’s License, SCDMV, <http://www.scdmvonline.com/Driver-Services/Drivers-License/First-Time-Driver> (last visited Nov. 22, 2019). Although some people may have an FTPTT suspension on their record even though they are younger than 16 years old, I assume this population is negligible.

³ The application is available for download at Tidycensus, <https://walkerke.github.io/tidycensus/>, (last visited November 24, 2019).

Threshold (Column C)⁴ by the city’s population for whom poverty status is determined (Column B).⁵ The result is the city-level poverty rate (Column D). See Ex. E.

29. As noted above, as of May 31, 2019, there were 297,826 current suspensions on driver’s licenses for failure to pay a traffic ticket. See Brooks Decl. Ex. C, ECF No. 14–3. The May 2019 Court-Level Data provide information about the courts that handled the traffic tickets related to each of these 297,826 FTPTT suspensions. See Ex. B. Based on information provided by the DMV in the “Court Sate” [sic] column of this worksheet, 220,692 of these suspensions were associated with a court in the state of South Carolina, which corresponds to 74% of all FTPTT suspensions in place at the time.

30. Among the 220,692 FTPTT suspensions that were associated with a South Carolina court via information in the “Court Sate” column, 1,757 (0.8%) had a value in the “Court City” column that could not be matched to a South Carolina city even after standardizing the spelling of these values through the process described in Appendix 1. This left 218,935 FTPTT suspensions that could be matched to a city in South Carolina. These suspensions are associated with 233 different South Carolina cities, and thus were included in the analysis of the relationship between city-level poverty rates and FTPTT suspension rates described below. See infra Paragraph 32.

31. I used the 218,935 FTPTT suspensions in the May 2019 Court-Level Data that were matched to a South Carolina city to calculate city-level suspension rates using the methodology described in Paragraph 27.

A. Association Between Rates of Poverty and Driver’s License Suspension for Failure to Pay a Traffic Ticket in South Carolina Cities

32. To illustrate the relationship between poverty and the DMV’s suspension of drivers’ licenses for failure to pay a traffic ticket in South Carolina, I graphed city-level poverty rates against city-level FTPTT suspension rates for the 233 South Carolina cities identified in the May 2019 Court-Level Data. See Ex. F. I then performed a linear regression to understand the correlation between poverty and the FTPTT suspension rate at the city level, weighted by the population size of each city. See id. (demonstrating regressing line).

33. In a simple linear regression, a straight line (the “regression line”) approximates the relationship between one or more predictor variables and one response variable.⁶ A positive linear correlation indicates that an increase in the predictor variable is associated with an increase in the response variable. A negative linear correlation occurs when an increase in the predictor variable is associated with a decrease in the response variable. The coefficient of each predictor variable is the average change in the response variable for each one unit change in the predictor.

34. The regression analysis revealed a positive linear correlation between the poverty rate and the FTPTT suspension rate in each South Carolina city that was identifiable in the May 2019 Court-Level Data.

⁶ See Chambers, J. M., Linear Models, Chapter 4 in Statistical Models in S, (J. M. Chambers and T. J. Hastie, eds. 1992).

35. The finding of a positive linear correlation means that South Carolina cities with a higher proportion of people living in poverty tend to also have a higher rate of driver's license suspension for failure to pay a traffic ticket.

36. The regression analysis found that each one-unit increase in the city-level poverty rate is associated with a 0.62-unit increase in the city-level FTPTT suspension rate.⁷ This finding indicates that each 1% increase in the city-level poverty rate is associated with, on average, an additional 6.2 suspensions per 1000 residents.⁸ The 95% confidence interval of this estimated effect is 0.42 to 0.82, indicating strong evidence of a positive linear correlation between city-level poverty rates and FTPTT suspension rates. I describe this and other test statistics used to assess the strength and robustness of this estimate in Appendix 2.

37. The positive correlation between city-level poverty and FTPTT suspension rates is illustrated by the examples of Sumter and Summerville, two cities that fall squarely on the regression line. Sumter has a poverty rate double that of Summerville and an FTPTT suspension rate that is around 1.7 times greater. In Sumter, 20.8% of the population lives in poverty and the rate of driver's license suspension for failure to pay a traffic ticket is 17.8 suspensions for every

⁸ The y-intercept in this model is 0.033, with a standard error of 0.021. In this linear regression, the y-intercept or constant is the estimated value of the response variable when all predictor variables are equal to 0. The constant is an important component of the mathematical specification of the linear regression, but its value typically is not interpreted. In this case, because there are not cities with a poverty rate of 0, the constant falls outside of the range of the observed data, and therefore is inappropriate to interpret.

100 residents. In Summerville, 10.4% of the population lives in poverty and the rate of driver's license suspension for failure to pay a traffic ticket is significantly lower at 10.5 suspensions for every 100 residents.

38. The positive correlation between city-level poverty and FTPTT suspension rates is consistent with the conclusion that many people whose driver's licenses are suspended by the South Carolina DMV for failure to pay a traffic ticket have not reinstated their licenses because they cannot afford to pay, rather than because they have the resources to pay, but willfully refused to so.

V. Suspension Risks among Black and White People and Racial Risk Ratios (Assignment #2)

39. In order to determine whether there are different proportions of Black and white people who have a driver's license suspended for failure to pay a traffic ticket ("Assignment #2"), I calculated the risk of FTPTT suspension for Black people and white people, as well as the racial risk ratio.

40. The May 2019 Data includes a Microsoft Excel worksheet providing the total number of driver's licenses under suspension for failure to pay a traffic ticket, disaggregated by race ("May 2019 Race Data"). The May 2019 Race Data is attached to the Brooks Decl., Ex. D, ECF No. 14-4.

41. To calculate the risk of driver's license suspension for failure to pay a traffic ticket for different racial groups, I first obtained statistics about the population age 16 or older in South Carolina, both in the state as a whole and disaggregated by racial group, from the 2017 American Community Survey. See Ex. G. This dataset also contains information about unemployment rates by race for the population 16 years and older in South Carolina, which are not used in the FTPTT suspension risk analysis. Id.

42. I then divided the total number of individuals whose South Carolina driver's licenses were suspended for FTPTT as of May 31, 2019, by the total population age 16 or older in order to calculate the overall risk that an individual's South Carolina driver's license is suspended for FTPTT as of May 31, 2019, regardless of race.

43. Using this method, I also calculated statewide risks of individual suspension for each racial group. As described in more detail in Paragraphs 44–49, infra, I found that 2.61% of all non-Hispanic white people in South Carolina age 16 or older, and 8.94% of Black people in South Carolina age 16 or older, had South Carolina driver's licenses that were suspended for FTPTT as of May 31, 2019.

44. My analysis of FTPTT suspension risk and racial risk ratios considers only DMV data for Black people and non-Hispanic white people. This is because the DMV and ACS use different definitions of "Hispanic." The spreadsheet provided by the DMV included "HISPANIC" as a racial group, while the ACS, and the Census Bureau more broadly, treat Hispanic as an ethnicity. The ACS and the Census Bureau separately count, for example, Hispanic Black people and Hispanic white people.

45. For the baseline populations described in Paragraph 47, I use non-Hispanic white individuals and Black individuals (both Hispanic and non-Hispanic). This is because the ACS does not provide breakdowns of the non-Hispanic Black population age 16 or older, but it does provide estimates of the non-Hispanic white population age 16 or older. Additionally, less than one percent of the South Carolina population (0.22%) are identified in the ACS as both Black and Hispanic, indicating that the difference between the overall Black population age 16 or older and the non-Hispanic Black population age 16 or older is negligible.⁹

46. Of the 192,263 people whose driver's licenses were under suspension for failure to pay a traffic ticket as of May 31, 2019, there were 92,760 Black people and 67,718 white people. See Brooks Decl. Ex. D, ECF 14-4. Based on these figures, Black people made up 48% and white people made up 35% of the total number of people with a driver's license under suspension by the DMV for failure to pay a traffic ticket as of May 31, 2019.

47. According to the 2017 ACS estimates, there are 3,926,466 people in the South Carolina population age 16 or older, which includes 1,038,084 Black people (regardless of ethnicity), and 2,593,012 non-Hispanic white people. See Ex. G. Black people and non-Hispanic white people thus make up 95.4% of the total population in South Carolina age 16 or older. See id. Black people age 16 or older make up 26% of the total state population age 16 or older. Id. Thus, Black people make up 26% of the state population at risk of having a driver's license suspended for failure to pay a traffic ticket. See supra Paragraph 25 n.2.

48. The May 2019 Race Data show that 67,718 non-Hispanic white people had a driver's license under suspension for FTPTT as of May 31, 2019. See Brooks Decl. Ex. D, ECF 14-4. This figure represents 2.61% of the total non-Hispanic white population age 16 or older in South Carolina noted above. Thus, the risk of FTPTT suspension for non-Hispanic white people in South Carolina age 16 or over is 2.61%.

49. The May 2019 Race Data show that 92,760 Black people had a driver's license under suspension for FTPTT as of May 31, 2019. See Brooks Decl. Ex. D, ECF 14-4. This figure represents 8.94% of the total Black population age 16 or older in South Carolina noted above. Thus, the risk of FTPTT suspension for Black people in South Carolina age 16 or older is 8.94%.

50. I calculated the relative risk that a Black person of driving age would experience an FTPTT suspension as compared to a non-Hispanic white person of driving age. This is also known as a “racial risk ratio.” I made this calculation by dividing the risk of FTPTT suspension for Black people (8.94%) by the risk of FTPTT suspension for non-Hispanic white people (2.61%).

51. The relative risk, or racial risk ratio, of driver’s license suspension for failure to pay a traffic ticket for Black people as compared to non-Hispanic white people is 3.42. This means that Black people in South Carolina face a 3.42 times greater risk of having a license suspension than non-Hispanic white people.

VI. Reinstatement Rates for Driver’s License Suspensions for Failure to Pay Traffic Tickets (Assignment #3)

52. In order to determine the rate at which people with driver’s licenses under suspension for failure to pay a traffic ticket were able to pay to reinstate their licenses, I used data the DMV provided to Mr. Brooks and Ms. Dunn, which addresses FTPTT suspensions between March 30, 2018 and March 30, 2019 (“Year-Long Data”). See Brooks Decl., Ex. H, ECF No. 14-8.

53. According to the Year-Long Data, 40,946 people had a driver’s license under suspension for failure to pay a traffic ticket as of March 30, 2018. Brooks Decl., Ex. H, ECF No. 14-8. Additionally, the DMV suspended the driver’s licenses of an additional 54,077 people for failure to pay a traffic ticket between March 30, 2018 and March 30, 2019. Id. These two figures added together show that there were a total of 95,023 people with driver’s licenses suspended for failure to pay a traffic ticket at any point during the year-long period between March 30, 2018 and March 30, 2019.

54. According to the Year-Long Data, 35,711 of the 95,023 people with FTPTT suspensions reinstated their driver's licenses at some point between March 30, 2019 and March 30, 2019. Brooks Decl., Ex. H, ECF No. 14-8.

55. DMV data thus shows that 62% (or 59,312 people) of the 95,023 people with an FTPTT suspension on their driver's license at any time between March 30, 2018 and March 30, 2019 did not manage to secure license reinstatement during that same year-long period.

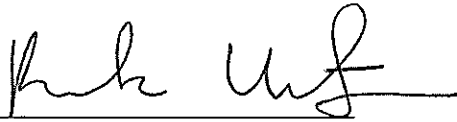

VII. Poverty and Unemployment Rates Among Black and White People in South Carolina

56. I obtained data on South Carolina poverty and employment rates by race for the population age 16 or older from the 2017 American Community Survey. See Ex. G, Ex. H.

57. The poverty rate for non-Hispanic white people in South Carolina is 11.2%. Ex. H. The poverty rate for Black people (of all ethnicities) in South Carolina is 26.7%. Id.

58. The unemployment rate for non-Hispanic white people in South Carolina is 5.5%. Ex. G. The unemployment rate for Black people (of all ethnicities) in South Carolina is 11.7%. Id.

I declare under penalty of perjury and under the laws of the United States and New York that the foregoing is true and correct to the best of my knowledge. Executed in New York, New York on November 25, 2019.

Appendix 1

This Appendix explains the methodology for cleaning data in a worksheet provided by the South Carolina Department of Motor Vehicles (“DMV”). The worksheet provided data regarding the total count of driver’s license suspensions for failure to pay a traffic ticket (“FTPTT”) as of May 31, 2019, associated with different courts in South Carolina and out of state (“May 2019 Court-Level Data”). See Ex. B.

As explained in my Declaration, the May 2019 Court-Level Data indicates that there were 297,826 suspensions for failure to pay a traffic ticket as of May 31, 2019. Each of the 297,826 tickets that led to those suspensions is associated with a “Court Name” and a “Court City” in the May 2019 Court-Level Data. As described in my Declaration, the “Court Name” and “Court City” data appears to have been human-entered (rather than selected from a drop-down menu), which resulted in numerous misspellings. Because I was interested in comparing suspension rates at the city level rather than suspension rates for each court, I focused on cleaning the data in the “Court City” column rather than in the “Court Name” column.

My colleagues and I used four sequential methods to match these misspelled city names to place names from the Census.¹⁰ Census “Places” include cities, towns, boroughs, and Census-Designated Places. I refer to “Places” as “cities” or a “city” throughout this Appendix.

First, I removed all punctuation and standardized the capitalization and the common location prefixes (e.g. by changing prefixes of “N” to “North”, “W” to “West”, and “Mt” to “Mount”) in the data set forth in the “Court City” column of the May 2019 Court-Level Data.

Second, I applied to the data a common phonetic indexing system called the Soundex Indexing System (Soundex),¹¹ which was created by the National Archives and Records Administration. The goal of Soundex is to match words based on how they sound, regardless of how they are spelled. For example, applying Soundex to the data identified the same code for the following data in the “Court City” field: “ABBEVILLIE,” “ABBEVILLE,” “ABBEVILLES,” and “ABEEVILLE.” Soundex permitted recognition that these variations in spelling all referred to the same city: Abbeville, South Carolina. I converted all of the Soundex codes to the correct spelling for the relevant South Carolina city.

Third, I then joined the DMV data to Census Place names using optimal string alignment, or “OSA” (restricted Damerau-Levenshtein distance), an algorithm that can be used to join two datasets together on an inexact match.¹² This allows us to resolve character strings that do not match exactly using spellings that are clearly closely related, but that did not result in identification of the same Soundex code (e.g., “ANDEFSON” vs. “ANDERSON” were identified as a match through OSA, but not through application of Soundex). I used a maximum distance metric of “1” to avoid matching strings to multiple cities in the dataset. For example, using a larger string distance will result in incorrectly matching the data “Glendale” in the “Court City” field to the Census Place Allendale, South Carolina. OSA is a commonly used algorithm for matching misspelled words that is implemented in most source programming languages that are used for data analysis.

Fourth, I supervised an ACLU legal assistant and paralegal in manually reviewing the matches to fix any incorrect matches resulting from application of Soundex and OSA. If data in the “Court City” field of the May 2019 Court-Level Data could not be definitively matched to a Census Place in South Carolina, my colleagues and I entered “NA” in the corresponding “Court City” field in the cleaned data set.

The cleaned Court City Fields of the May 2019 Court-Level Data resulting from the cleaning process described in this Appendix is attached to my Declaration as Exhibit C.

Appendix 2

This Appendix explains common test statistics used to interpret the correlation size, statistical significance, and robustness of the linear regression of city-level poverty rates and rates of suspension for failure to pay a traffic ticket (“FTPTT”) in the South Carolina cities identified in the South Carolina Department of Motor Vehicle’s (“DMV”) data described in my Declaration. See Watson Decl. Paragraphs 32-38. As noted in my Declaration, this regression analysis finds that each one-unit increase in the city-level poverty rate is associated with a 0.62-unit increase in the city-level FTPTT suspension rate. Id. ¶ 36.

1. Pearson Correlation Coefficient

The first test statistic used to interpret the robustness of this linear regression is the Pearson correlation coefficient. The Pearson correlation coefficient measures the relationship between two variables, and ranges from -1 to 1 . A value of 1 implies a perfect positive linear relationship between the predictor variable and the response variable. A value of -1 implies a perfect negative linear relationship between the predictor variable and the response variable. A value of 0 implies that there is no linear correlation between the variables.

The Pearson correlation coefficient between city-level poverty rate and city-level FTPTT suspension rate, weighted by population size, is 0.37 . This indicates a positive correlation between city-level poverty rate and city-level FTPTT suspension rate. I conducted this test using the `cov.wt` function implemented in R.

2. P-Value of the City-Level Poverty Rate Predictor Variable

The “p-value” is a test statistic that can be used to reject a null hypothesis that there is no relationship between the predictor variable and the response variable in a regression analysis. The p-value is thus a measure of the precision of the estimate of the coefficient of a predictor variable found by a regression.

In the regression analysis described in my Declaration, the p-value of the predictor variable (the city-level poverty rate) can be used to assess how likely it is that the observed relationship between city-level poverty rates and city-level FTPTT suspension rates is a product of random chance, rather than the product of a true relationship.

The p-value of the city-level poverty rate predictor variable in this linear regression is 0.00000000419 . This finding means that there is less than one chance in a billion that the observed relationship is the product of random chance.

Given these data, we can comfortably reject the null hypothesis that city-level poverty rates and city-level FTPTT suspension rates are not associated.

3. Sensitivity analysis

A few South Carolina cities are outliers, meaning that their observed poverty rates and FTPTT suspension rates fall far away from the regression line. To understand whether these outliers strongly influenced the model, I also conducted a robust linear regression,¹³ which down-weights observations that have high leverage — i.e., that fall far away from the regression line and may exert more influence than other points. In the robust analysis, the estimated effect was very similar to the non-robust estimate. The coefficient of the city-level poverty rate in the robust regression was 0.64, with a standard error of 0.7. The 95% confidence interval of the robust estimate was 0.5 to 0.78, and the p-value is 0.0000000000000004234.

The results of the sensitivity analysis indicate that this regression is not being substantially influenced by the outlier variables, and that down-weighting outliers only increases the strength and precision of the observed effect of city-level poverty rates on city-level rates of driver's license suspension for FTPTT.

SUMMARY

Data scientist using clearly communicated statistics, causal inference modeling, and data visualization to advance civil liberties through advocacy, legislative support, and data-driven civil rights litigation.

EXPERIENCE

Senior Data Scientist | American Civil Liberties Union [New York, NY] 2019-present
Data Scientist | American Civil Liberties Union [New York, NY] 2018-2019

- Lead end-to-end analyses to advance civil rights litigation, public education, and advocacy
- Translate complex statistical topics into plain language and visualizations for litigators
- Spearhead creative data collection through FOIA requests, web scraping, and court watching programs
- Implemented the ACLU's first-ever randomized controlled field trials during the 2018 midterms

Research Scientist | EcoHealth Alliance [New York, NY] 2016- 2018

- Led research projects into the drivers of zoonotic disease emergence, involving data collection and tidying, model specification and validation, and scientific writing and presenting
- Assembled, cleaned, combined, and documented data sets from large, heterogeneous sources
- Published and presented scientific findings at conferences and to government stakeholders
- Mentored interns and led internal trainings in R, git, and AWS, and reproducible research tools

Consultant, Global Health | Rabin Martin [New York, NY] 2014-2015

- Conducted research and wrote project proposals to inform global health and development strategy and programming for iNGO, industry, and governmental clients

Research Assistant | Woolcock Institute of Medical Research [Sydney, AUS] 2013 - 2014

- Analyzed neurological biomarkers to find correlates of poor driving performance in sleep apnea patients

TECHNICAL SKILLS

- Key skills: R/tidyverse, data wrangling, regression and tree-based modeling (lm, glm, randomForest, xgboost), data visualization (ggplot, Shiny), GIS and mapping (sf, leaflet), version control (git), SQL
- Additional skills: natural language processing, web scraping, bash/shell scripting, Python (pandas, numpy)

SERVICE

Board Chair | R Ladies NYC [New York, NY] 2016 - present

- Organize workshops, lectures, office hours, and mentoring programs for a community of women in data science to advance inclusivity in STEM.

Editorial Analyst | East Tennessee Peace & Justice Center [Knoxville, TN] 2011 - 2014

- Aided in data management and administration for the East TN Peace and Justice Center, an organization working to decriminalize homelessness in Knoxville.

EDUCATION

MSc, Epidemiology | LONDON SCHOOL OF HYGIENE & TROPICAL MEDICINE 2015-2016

BS, Biological Sciences | UNIVERSITY OF TENNESSEE 2009-2013

- Phi Beta Kappa society member, Magna cum Laude, Haslam scholar, Neyland scholar, swim team captain and Olympic Trial competitor (2008 and 2012)
