* SIGH *

I had the feeling it was something like this. As a retired Lieutenant Colonel, you are definitely aware of Army bureaucracy. When the S-1 packages up an N-426, they want the following documents:

- Completed N-426
- Completed N-400.
- Two forms of ID
- Proof of military service
- Police and court documents if you have been arrested

Can you provide me the N-400, the two forms of ID, (I'm not going to ask YOU for proof of military service. SPC Zong should have a military ID, by now, but if you have his enlistment documents, I'll take them. I suspect you may not have a criminal background check, but good, if you have them).

You are free to raise heck to any court you want to, if it comes to that, but I'm looking to get this signed.

- Jim

Sir,

Yes I can guarantee you we won't submit his packet any further. Those documents are just required documents for us to send it up to our commander for signature. We will get it signed and returned directly to you.

SGT Mack,

Thank you for your assistance, but I only need the N-426 signed and returned to his attorney. She has the other items and will submit it all directly to USCIS. Our only question that the commander must answer is "Is SPC Zong serving honorably" and from what date. Your unit will not be mailing this in to USCIS. The SPC had a background check done, before he came on active duty and if there were any criminal matters, they were dealt with or waived (which we really no longer do morality waivers).

That said, do you still need these documents and can you promise me that you will not try and submit this packet to USCIS, if we get them to you?

I will call, but please understand that his attorney, Mrs. Stock, is submitting the packet for him, once he gets his N-426 signed. If you need to see a copy of the N-400, we're happy to ask for it, of course. Just let us know what the S1 shop needs.
