1 I. INTRODUCTION

2 Defendants' assertion that there are no material facts in dispute should be 3 summarily rejected. In fact, the record is replete with evidence establishing that 4 Defendants discriminated against Plaintiff because of her sexual orientation, 5 suppressed her freedom of expression, and violated her right to privacy.

6 Santiago High School ("SHS") has no written policy regarding public 7 displays of affection ("PDA") and its officials impose discipline for PDA in a 8 subjective and discriminatory fashion. Indeed, the evidence shows that, prior to 9 this lawsuit, the only couples formally disciplined recently at SHS for PDA were 10 Plaintiff Charlene Nguon ("Charlene") and her girlfriend, another lesbian couple, 11 and a straight couple who were hugging next to Charlene and Trang. The evidence 12 also demonstrates that straight couples routinely and openly make out and engage 13 in inappropriate touching without any formal punishment, often in front of school 14 officials. In contrast – and notwithstanding Defendants' hyperbole – the behavior 15 for which Charlene was repeatedly punished was minor and likely did not even 16 violate the unwritten PDA policy. Finally, that Charlene was targeted because of 17 her sexual orientation is established through the contemporaneous documents, in 18 which school officials stated that Charlene was being disciplined for PDA "w/19 other girls," "with another female student," and because of her "persistent public 20 display of relationship with another girl."

21 The evidence also shows that Defendants violated Charlene's right to 22 privacy. Defendant Wolf told Charlene's mother that she was "gay." Even Wolf 23 admitted that he told Charlene's mother much more than that she was "kissing" 24 another girl: he also told her mother that Charlene was "making out" and 25 "inappropriately touching" "a lot" with "another girl."

26 Finally, Defendants cannot excuse their wrongful conduct by claiming they 27 enjoy immunity or because they took appropriate remedial action. Defendants 28 admit they knew it was wrong to discriminate on the basis of sexual orientation,

1 which precludes immunity. Similarly, Defendants provide no evidence that they 2 have taken any remedial action whatsoever. Indeed, at every turn, they have 3 denied any wrongdoing.

4 These disputed material facts, and those below, preclude summary judgment.

5 II. FACTUAL BACKGROUND¹

6 Until school officials targeted her because of her sexual orientation and 7 forced her to leave SHS, Charlene was regarded as a model student. She had a 8 3.93 GPA, was in the top 5% of her class, and, until her junior year, she had never 9 missed a day of high school.² There was no concern on the part of administrators 10 of her being a troublemaker.³ School officials described her as “very shy but 11 excellent,” “very cooperative,” having a “good attitude,” and a “hard worker.”⁴ 12 Even as he forced her to leave SHS, Wolf recognized her as a top student, telling 13 another principal: “I do have another student I’d like you to take instead, but she’ll 14 [Charlene] raise your test scores.”⁵

15 A. Santiago High School Had No Consistent Or Written Policies 16 Prohibiting Public Displays Of Affection.

17 During Charlene’s enrollment at SHS, there was no written policy 18 prohibiting specific kinds of PDA.⁶ Indeed, there was no written policy addressing 19 PDA until after Charlene brought this lawsuit.⁷ School officials were free to apply 20 their own idiosyncratic standards to determine which kinds of behavior were 21 permitted, standards which – as described below – allowed for discriminatory

1 enforcement of rules against “inappropriate” PDA. Because the written policy
2 addressing PDA created after Charlene brought suit lacks any objective standard, 3 school officials remain free to use it to discriminate against lesbian and gay 4 students. One official deemed inappropriate “any behavior that is of an excessive 5 nature that certain people or some individuals might find objectionable or 6 inappropriate for a school setting.”⁸ The two campus aides who allegedly 7 witnessed inappropriate PDA by Charlene and her girlfriend described the standard 8 as “you know it when you see it.”⁹ Another official relied on her own obscure 9 creed that “there is a way everyone should behave in every certain area of their life 10 I think.”¹⁰ Wolf testified that inappropriate PDA is always “sexual” conduct.¹¹

11 Although the Defendants refer to these standards collectively as “common 12 sense,”¹² school officials admit that there is no consensus as to the kind of behavior 13 that is inappropriate.¹³ As one school official admitted, “[s]ometimes it’s a little 14 vague. It gets a little fuzzy.”¹⁴ Despite this obvious lack of clarity, Wolf never 15 attempted to determine if school officials had a uniform understanding of what is 16 and is not appropriate or to determine if the rules were being fairly enforced.¹⁵

17 School officials agreed that short kisses and hugging are considered 18 appropriate PDA.¹⁶ However, at least one campus aide believed hugging may have 19 been impermissible for same-sex couples, but permissible for a male and female.¹⁷ 20 In addition, based on their observations of the behavior that was occurring all 21 around them, students, including Charlene, did not believe or know that French

2 know that French kissing was prohibited.¹⁹

3 B. Charlene Was Disciplined For Behavior That Was Tolerated
4 When Engaged In By Opposite-Sex Couples.

5 1. Public displays of affection by heterosexual couples are 6 ubiquitous and tolerated at Santiago High School.

7 During the 2004-05 school year, there were roughly 2000 students at SHS, 8 and at least 50 heterosexual couples.²⁰ By contrast, only a small minority of SHS
9 students is openly gay. School officials recall only one other openly same-sex 10 couple that year, and no more than a total of four or five during all prior years.²¹

11 Making out on campus among heterosexual students is common.²² More 12 serious conduct also occurs, including groping breasts, oral sex, and intercourse, 13 although much less frequently.²³ Often PDA will take place openly in the student 14 quad, in the parking lot in front of the administration office (the same place where 15 Charlene and Trang allegedly engaged in inappropriate PDA), and in the presence 16 of school officials, who do nothing more than to occasionally tell the students to 17 “knock it off,” sometimes to the same students on repeated occasions.²⁴

18 Defendants misleadingly insist that they “disciplined other couples for similar

1 behavior” to that for which Charlene was disciplined. The reality, however, is that 2 prior to this lawsuit, out of more than 2000 students per year, Defendants can only 3 point to three couples who have ever been given any sort of formal discipline, e.g., 4 Saturday detention or suspension, for PDA—specifically “defiance” of a PDA rule.
5 Two of those couples were lesbian couples: Charlene and Trang, and two other 6 female students named Alex and Samantha.²⁵ Only one was an opposite-sex 7 couple, and that couple was with Charlene and Trang at the time they allegedly 8 engaged in inappropriate PDA. School officials, including the campus aides who 9 witnessed the alleged inappropriate PDA by Charlene and Trang, make no effort to 10 keep track of the number of times they have verbally reprimanded any particular 11 heterosexual couple for inappropriate PDA and yet insist, incredibly, that no 12 heterosexual couple—except the one couple disciplined at the same time as 13 Charlene and her girlfriend—ever makes out again in the open after being given a 14 single warning.²⁶ Moreover, the evidence shows that Charlene and Trang were 15 issued numerous warnings because their lesbian relationship was the subject of 16 gossip among the SHS staff, leading to more intense and coordinated scrutiny.²⁷

17 As SHS’s past disciplinary practices make clear, opposite-sex couples are 18 able repeatedly to make out, inappropriately touch each other, and engage in other 19 forms of PDA without repercussion, so long as they stop briefly whenever verbally 20 reprimanded. Opposite sex couples face punishment for PDA only if they are 21 engaged in PDA near a same-sex couple that is engaged in similar behavior.
22 Same-sex couples, however, are monitored more strictly and, as described below, 23 gravely disciplined for behavior for which straight couples are not punished.

2. Defendants’ version of events should be received skeptically in light of several obvious untruths and exaggerations.

Defendants make the remarkable assertion in their Moving Brief that Charlene admitted to the actions they describe therein. In fact, most of the events described by Defendants never occurred.

Perhaps realizing this shortcoming, Defendants resort to exaggerated and inflammatory language when describing the two girls’ conduct as a means to justify their discrimination. Defendants accuse Charlene and Trang of being between one another’s legs “doggie-style.” That language, however, was never used by any witness to describe any of Charlene’s conduct. That inflammatory term was introduced into this lawsuit by Defendants’ counsel and has been used repeatedly by counsel in misleading, harassing, and inappropriate questions to several students at their depositions.²⁸ There is no evidence, even among the testimony cited by Defendants, that Charlene engaged in any conduct “doggie style,” as that term is defined either in the contemporary lexicon (where it refers to intercourse where one partner is behind another) or by Defendants’ lawyers.²⁹

Defendants also insist that there were occasions when Charlene “had her hand up Trang’s shirt.” Not so. On one occasion, in a playful gesture, Trang merely pressed one hand on Charlene’s side because her hand was cold.³⁰ Trang neither groped nor fondled Charlene, and, clearly, this was not a sexual act.

Defendants also allege that several parents of other SHS students complained about Charlene’s conduct in the schoolyard. In reality, Defendants received only one such complaint, and this complaint—relayed to Wolf immediately before he first warned Charlene and Trang to stop hugging—was

1 motivated by the fact that Charlene and Trang were both girls.³¹

2 3. Charlene was disciplined only for hugging her partner and 3 giving her a short kiss goodbye.

4 Charlene and Trang were warned, given Saturday school, and suspended 5 twice for hugging, briefly kissing, and placing one's hand on the other's side in a 6 manner that cannot, by any reasonable standard, be deemed sexual. As is 7 discussed above, school officials agree that none of this behavior is inappropriate, 8 at least when it is engaged in by a heterosexual couple.³²

9 Defendants insist that prior to December 10, 2004, Charlene's first warning 10 for PDA resulted from her "making out" with Trang. This is not true. Charlene 11 was not "making out," but rather merely hugging Trang, much to the chagrin of a 12 nearby apparently anti-gay parent of another student who complained about it—13 spurring Wolf to action.³³ Prior to being warned, Charlene was approached by a 14 campus aide, Dorothy McCuiston. Ms. McCuiston, who had never before seen 15 two girls displaying affection for one another at SHS, snidely remarked that it was 16 "getting hot and heavy" and walked away.³⁴ Ms. McCuiston then approached 17 another campus aide, Marcia Sharabi, and gossiped about the apparently salacious

24 and another DDC member concluded the blog "didn't seem significant enough

2 hugging, and had never before been warned by either aide about inappropriate
3 PDA, Ms. Sharabi—who had not even witnessed the hugging—immediately 4 notified Wolf.³⁶ Wolf arrived within minutes and told Charlene and Trang to stop 5 and warned them not to engage in such inappropriate PDA again.³⁷ Later, Wolf 6 instructed Ms. McCuiston to bring the “two girls” into the office if she ever saw 7 them engage in “inappropriate” PDA again.³⁸ This was the first and only time in 8 her three years at SHS that Ms. McCuiston could recall Wolf instructing her to 9 bring any couple to his office for engaging in PDA.³⁹ All because of a simple hug.

10 Charlene was first disciplined—rather than merely verbally warned—for 11 PDA on December 10, 2004.⁴⁰ She was sitting on a bench hugging Trang, who 12 was standing up and facing Charlene. They were with three friends, an opposite-13 sex couple who were also hugging, and William Vo.⁴¹ Both couples were taken to 14 Wolf’s office, reprimanded by him, and given Saturday detention.⁴² Although 15 Defendants assert that Charlene was disciplined for “defiance,” in completing the 16 formal discipline form ordering Charlene to Saturday detention, a school official 17 stated that she was being punished for engaging with PDA “w/ other girls.”⁴³

18 On December 15, 2004, Charlene was observed giving Trang a one to two-

2 explained to Charlene's parents that Charlene was being suspended for being

4 Soon it became clear that administrators were gossiping about Charlene and 5 Trang, and that the couple was subjected to disparate scrutiny by school officials.
6 At some point between December 2004 and March 2005, Charlene and Trang were 7 approached by Assistant Principal Ryan Smith. Defendants do not suggest that 8 Charlene was engaged in inappropriate PDA at the time, nor could they. Charlene 9 and Trang were simply taking pictures of themselves arm-in-arm.⁴⁷ Nevertheless, 10 Mr. Smith asked them if they were "the infamous kissing girls."⁴⁸

11 This scrutiny continued. On March 22, 2005, Charlene was standing, facing 12 Trang, who was sitting on a bench. Trang had one of her cold hands on Charlene's 13 side, under her shirt.⁴⁹ They were approached by Assistant Principal Stovall, taken 14 to Principal Wolf's office, and suspended for three days.⁵⁰ Again, Defendants 15 insist that the suspension was for defiance. And again, in documentary evidence 16 generated shortly after the incident, Wolf states that he suspended Charlene 17 because she was not even trying to be "discreet" about her affection with her 18 girlfriend and because she "can't stop from having public displays of affection with 19 another female student."⁵¹ And, at Wolf's direction, Assistant Principal Stovall

9 no evidence that she previously came to campus except at Charlene’s request or 10 interacted with Charlene’s friends, other parents of SHS students, or SHS staff.⁵⁵

11 2. Wolf told Charlene’s mom that she was gay.

1 nevertheless insist that he did not disclose her sexual orientation.⁶² They 2 simultaneously argue that Charlene was disclosing her sexual orientation to others
3 on campus simply by engaging in PDA with Trang.⁶³ Obviously, these positions 4 are incompatible. Moreover, this attempt to draw an artificial distinction between 5 same-sex affection and sexual orientation is further belied by the testimony of 6 Wolf's own staff, who admitted that they identify students' sexual orientation 7 based on their public displays of affection, such as handholding and hugging, with 8 other students.⁶⁴ Charlene's mother, and Trang's father, plainly understood Wolf's 9 disclosures about their same-sex affection to mean that the students were 10 lesbians.⁶⁵ In fact, upon learning of his daughter's sexual orientation, Trang's 11 father threatened to send her to a special school in Florida "to fix her."⁶⁶

12 Defendants insist that Charlene's mother had suspicions that her daughter 13 was gay.⁶⁷ But those suspicions only came about after Wolf told her during their 14 first meeting that Charlene was kissing another girl.⁶⁸ Certainly, even if Charlene's 16 would not have been free to confirm those suspicions.

19 first is an involuntary transfer, which occurs only after a school administrator

1 which a student's parents request a transfer.⁷⁰ Principal Wolf forced Charlene or 2 Trang to transfer to another school, but not through either of these procedures.

3 Wolf first attempted, unsuccessfully, to submit the matter to the DDC,
4 hoping that it would hold a transfer/expulsion hearing.⁷¹ When that failed, he met 5 with Charlene's mother to urge her to transfer her daughter to a different school.
6 Wolf explained to Charlene's mother that "it would be in Charlene's best interest if 7 she got a fresh start somewhere else," and that "things weren't going great for 8 [Charlene] at Santiago."⁷² Charlene's mother did not request a transfer. Indeed, 9 she pleaded with Wolf to let her daughter stay at Santiago until graduation.⁷³ Wolf 10 ignored her pleas and insisted that either Trang or Charlene had to leave. Wolf 11 even went so far as to tell Charlene's mother that if he were to submit the matter to 12 the disciplinary committee, Charlene might be expelled.⁷⁴ It is clear that the 13 transfer of Charlene to Bolsa Grande High School was not voluntary. Even if 14 Charlene's mother ultimately consented to the transfer, that consent was coerced.

6 1. School officials admitted to disciplining Charlene because 7 her PDA was with another girl.

8 When the plaintiff offers direct evidence of discriminatory motive, a triable 9 issue as to the actual motivation of the employer is created even if the evidence is 10 not substantial. Godwin v. Hunt Wesson, Inc., 150 F.3d 1217, 1221 (9th Cir.
11 1998). In this case, there is substantial direct evidence, including undisputable 12 documentary evidence, that Defendants intentionally targeted Charlene for 13 discipline because of her sexual orientation (or, to the extent there is a distinction, 14 the same-sex nature of Charlene’s conduct). Ms. McCuiston admitted that she 15 issued a warning to Charlene because her conduct involved “two girls hugging.”⁷⁷ 16 Charlene’s Saturday detention notice explicitly indicates that she was being 17 punished for engaging in PDA “w/ other girls.”⁷⁸ After suspending Charlene for a 18 second time, Wolf admitted to another principal in writing that he had disciplined 19 Charlene for “having public displays of affection with another female student.”⁷⁹ 20 And, at Wolf’s direction, Assistant Principal Stovall referred Charlene to the 21 Family and Youth Outreach Program of the Boys and Girls Club, for “Persistent 22 public display of relationship with another girl.”⁸⁰ It is difficult to envision more 23 explicit and probative evidence of discrimination.

1 2. Defendants disciplined Charlene for behavior that did not 2 violate SHS's PDA policy and that is tolerated when engaged 3 in by straight students.

4 That Defendants targeted Charlene for discipline because she is a lesbian is 5 also evident from the fact that she was disciplined for behavior that SHS staff
6 admit does not violate PDA policy. As is discussed above, Charlene and Trang 7 were warned and disciplined for hugging, briefly kissing, and placing one's hand 8 on the other's side in a nonsexual manner.⁸¹ As school officials admit, none of this 9 behavior is inappropriate,⁸² and yet, Charlene was repeatedly punished. With only 10 one exception, discussed below, punishment for heterosexual couples, however, 11 was reserved for sexual intercourse and other conduct far more explicit than PDA.
12 This disparity is itself proof of an intent to discriminate and raises a triable issue of 13 fact. Diaz v. American Tel. & Tel., 752 F.2d 1356, 1363 (9th Cir. 1985) 14 (“Statistics showing racial or ethnic imbalance are probative . . . because such 15 imbalance is often a telltale sign of purposeful discrimination”); Cornwell v.
16 Electra Cent. Credit Union, 439 F.3d 1018, 1032 (9th Cir. 2006).

17 Furthermore, even if Charlene had engaged in the conduct that Defendants 18 allege, it remains clear that she was disciplined for behavior that heterosexual 19 couples habitually practiced—and continue to practice—at SHS without 20 consequence. There are roughly 2000 students enrolled at SHS,⁸³ and at least 50
21 openly heterosexual couples.⁸⁴ By contrast, other than Charlene and Trang, school 22 officials recall only one openly same-sex couple during that year, and no more than 23 four or five during prior years.⁸⁵ However, of the three couples who have been 24 disciplined for engaging in inappropriate PDA during prior years, two were same

1 sex couples. The one opposite-sex couple that was disciplined for PDA was with 2 Charlene and Trang at the time they were disciplined, and a reasonable fact finder 3 could conclude they were disciplined only because to do otherwise would have 4 been too obviously discriminatory even for Wolf. Thus, while opposite-sex 5 couples make up less than 4% of couples at SHS, they constitute 67% of those 6 disciplined for PDA, and 100% of those disciplined, when the straight bystanders 7 are excluded. This disparity is substantial objective evidence of discrimination.

8 The fact that Wolf circumvented normal transfer procedures to separate 9 Charlene and Trang is additional evidence of his discriminatory intent. Garza v.
10 County of L.A., 756 F. Supp. 1298, 1350 (C.D. Cal. 1990) (“Factors that may be 11 probative of a discriminatory purpose include . . . departures from normal 12 procedural sequences”). Similarly, the Defendants’ obstruction of the formation of 13 a GSA club is evidence of a discriminatory motive.⁸⁶ Diana Hoang Vo, a 2003 14 SHS graduate, testified that when she attempted to obtain approval from the 15 administration to form a Gay-Straight Alliance club, she was denied twice by 16 Garcia and Wolf because there “wasn’t a need for it” and “there was no immediate 17 threat to the students and that it would be the focus of antigay hate crimes.”⁸⁷

18 3. Defendants knew Charlene was gay, although Plaintiffs 19 need not prove that.

20 Defendants insist, incredibly, that Wolf did not discriminate because he did 21 not know Charlene’s sexual orientation. Yet Defendants repeatedly and 22 incongruously argue that Charlene disclosed her sexual orientation on campus 23 simply by engaging in PDA with Trang.⁸⁸ Moreover, Wolf’s own staff admitted

24 ⁸⁶ Notwithstanding Defendants’ assertion, the GSA Network’s interest in this

1 that they identify students' sexual orientation based on their PDA, such as 2 handholding and hugging, with other students.⁸⁹ A reasonable fact finder could 3 conclude that Defendants knew Charlene was gay. Regardless, this argument is 4 legally untenable. Professed ignorance of sexual orientation does not provide a 5 free pass to discriminate against homosexual conduct; discrimination based on 6 homosexual conduct is itself prohibited—apart from any issue of perceived sexual 7 orientation. Lawrence v. Texas, 539 U.S. 558, 579, 123 S. Ct. 2472, 2484-85
8 (2003) (O'Connor, J., concurring) (law criminalizing sodomy between two men—

13 B. A Genuine Issue Of Material Fact Exists As To Whether 14 Defendants Impermissibly Suppressed Charlene's Expression
15 Based On Its Viewpoint.⁹⁰

16 Defendants attempt to dispose of Charlene's First Amendment claim with 17 the sweeping, unsupported assertion that they “are unaware of law stating that Ms.
18 Nguon has a First Amendment right to engage in PDA at school.”⁹¹ The law is 19 clear, however, that government may not engage in viewpoint-based discrimination 20 of speech or expressive conduct. Rosenberger v. Rector, 515 U.S. 819, 828-29, 21 115 S. Ct. 2510, 2516-17 (1995). The law also recognizes that conduct that 22 evinces a student's sexual orientation is expressive conduct protected by the First 23 Amendment.⁹²

1 Plaintiffs do not contest that a school district has the power to enforce 2 reasonable and equitable rules against inappropriate public displays of affection.
3 What Plaintiffs challenge is the singling out of same-sex PDA for punishment.
4 The fact that the District's vague, unwritten PDA policy is neutral on its face does 5 not preclude the fact that Defendants' enforcement of that policy was 6 discriminatory. NAACP, Western Region v. Richmond, 743 F.2d 1346, 1354 (9th 7 Cir. 1984) (considering "whether the prohibition on speech, although facially

11 C. A Genuine Issue Of Fact Exists As To Whether The Defendants
12 Violated Charlene's Right To Privacy.⁹³

16 While explaining Charlene's suspension to her mother, Wolf matter-of-17 factly disclosed that Charlene was "gay."⁹⁴ Wolf disputes that he said this, but that 18 dispute alone precludes the grant of summary judgment to Defendants.
19 Defendants' other argument – that what Wolf admits to telling Charlene's mother 20 could not be seen as disclosure of Charlene's sexual orientation as a matter of law 21 – must also be rejected for at least the following reasons.

22 First, Wolf admitted that as part of the two meetings he had with Charlene's 23 mother, he described Charlene's inappropriate and repeated public displays of 24 affection as much more than "kissing." During those meetings, Wolf described 25 Charlene's behavior to her mother as "making out" and "inappropriately touching"

⁹⁴ Chhun (Ex. 3) 49:24-50:1.

1 “another girl” on multiple occasions.⁹⁵ Moreover, at Wolf’s direction, school
2 officials wrote in two disciplinary notices that Charlene had purportedly engaged 3 in “heavy kissing w/ other girls” and in a “[p]ersistent public display of 4 relationship with another girl.”⁹⁶ These explicit descriptions of Charlene’s same-5 sex affection alone conveyed her sexual orientation to her mother loud and clear.

6 Wolf’s argument that he did not disclose Charlene’s sexual orientation 7 solely because he says he did not utter the “L” word (“lesbian”) is profoundly out 8 of touch with reality.⁹⁷ Same-sex conduct and the status of being gay or lesbian, 9 while theoretically separable, are in reality closely intertwined: so intertwined in 10 fact as to be understood in normal usage, and by the courts, to be one and the same.
11 For instance, in her concurrence in Lawrence v. Texas striking down a criminal 12 statute against “homosexual sodomy,” Justice O’Connor rejected the State of 13 Texas’ argument, similar to the one made by the Defendants here, that there is no 14 legal or real world connection between gay conduct and the status of being gay.⁹⁸
15 Similarly, in jurisdictions where the false assertion that a person is “homosexual” 16 still constitutes defamation per se, courts have held that a defendant need not use 17 the words “gay” or “lesbian” to be liable under those laws.⁹⁹

18 19 ⁹⁵ Wolf (Ex. 29) 217:3-11, 219:17-20, 279:10-280:3.

20 ⁹⁶ Stovall (Ex. 25) 104:8-13; Gonzalez (Ex. 5) 41:18-42:10; Family and Youth 21 Outreach Program referral form (Ex. 44).

22 ⁹⁷ Indeed, as discussed above, Defendants and Wolf’s staff admitted that they 23 assumed that certain students were gay or lesbian merely because they saw the 24 students “hugging” or “handholding” persons of the same gender.

25 ⁹⁸ Lawrence, 539 U.S. at 583 (“While it is true that the law applies only to [same-26 sex sexual] conduct, the conduct targeted by this law is conduct that is closely 27 correlated with being homosexual. Under such circumstances, Texas’ sodomy 28 law is targeted at more than conduct. It is instead directed toward gay persons as a class.”) (O’Connor, J., concurring).

⁹⁹ See, e.g., Wilson v. Harvey, 164 Ohio App.3d 278, 286, 842 N.E.2d 83, 89 (2005) (holding that flyer stating, inter alia, that plaintiff was in search of a “male companion” stated claim for libel per quod); Lewittes v. Cohen, 2004 WL 1171261 at *3 (S.D.N.Y. May 26, 2004) (reference to plaintiff as “that closeted editor of a certain paper” reasonably implied that plaintiff was gay); Bohdan v.
Alltool Mfg., 411 N.W.2d 902, 907 (Minn. 1987) (implying plaintiff was gay sufficient to state a claim for defamation). Of course, Plaintiffs do not suggest that the mere assertion that someone is gay or lesbian should be considered defamatory.

1 Even if Wolf's descriptions of Charlene's PDA could theoretically have two 2 meanings, it would be error to hold that those statements do not disclose sexual 3 orientation as a matter of law. Where two inferences are possible from one set of 4 facts, it is for the factfinder at trial to decide which is the more credible, rather than 5 for the court to choose one that appears more plausible on summary judgment.
6 McGregor v. National R.R. Pass. Corp., 187 F.3d 1113, 1115 (9th Cir. 1999).¹⁰⁰
7 Certainly, a parent who is told by a principal that her daughter had repeatedly 8 "kissed," "made out with," and "inappropriately touched" another girl could 9 reasonably interpret those statements to mean that her daughter was a lesbian.¹⁰¹

10 While the Defendants make much of the purported "fact" that Wolf "did not 11 perceive"¹⁰² Charlene to be a lesbian at the time of his conversations with her 12 mother, this "fact" is neither legally relevant nor credible. Proving that the 13 defendant had a requisite subjective belief about the meaning of the disclosed 14 information is not an element of a privacy claim. In any event, a reasonable 15 factfinder could find Wolf's self-proclaimed ignorance of Charlene's sexual 16 orientation to be wholly implausible. Although Wolf characterized all 17 inappropriate PDA as "sexual,"¹⁰³ he nonetheless claimed that it did not even cross 18 his mind that Charlene's and Trang's parents would understand his descriptions of 19 their same-sex conduct to mean that the students were gay.¹⁰⁴

20
21 ¹⁰⁰ Relatedly, in the context of defamation, courts may not rule that a statement 22 cannot be defamatory on its face "when by any reasonable interpretation the 23 language is susceptible of a defamatory meaning." Selleck v. Globe International, Inc., 166 Cal. App. 3d 1123, 1131, 212 Cal. Rptr. 838 (1985).

24 ¹⁰¹ See Steffan v. Perry, 41 F.3d 677, 699-700 (D.C. Cir. 1994) ("Of course one 25 may safely assume that individuals who engage in homosexual conduct have 26 such an orientation.") (Randolph, J., concurrence in part). To the extent that 27 Wolf now claims that a reasonable person would not interpret that information 28 to mean that her daughter was gay, he should be precluded from doing so as he refused to answer that question during his deposition. Wolf: 289:5-14.

¹⁰² Mot. at 18:25-26.

¹⁰³ Wolf (Ex. 29) 131:12-17.

¹⁰⁴ Id. at 294:6-18, 298:23-299:21. In a strained attempt to rationalize his disclosure of the gender of the student who Charlene was allegedly engaging in inappropriate same-sex conduct with, in his deposition, Wolf asserted that it never even crossed his mind that when he saw the unusual sight of two male

1 Indeed, a reasonable factfinder could conclude that Wolf's insistent 2 disclosure of the gender of the other student was not only intentional but calculated 3 to coerce the girls into ceasing the same-sex behavior that a parent had complained 4 about and that his staff "didn't appreciate."¹⁰⁵ School officials have hewed to the 5 party line that Charlene was disciplined for "defiance." Yet a factfinder could find 6 that defiance was not what was on Wolf's mind at the time, or was not the only 7 thing on Wolf's mind, given that contemporaneous documentation of the discipline 8 highlights the allegations that Charlene was "kissing another girl," or "girls," and 9 engaging in displays of affection "with another female student," or "another girl."

10 A factfinder could also find that Wolf intended to convey Charlene's sexual 11 orientation to her mother based on his frank admission that he was not supposed to 12 convey other kinds of information to her. Wolf acknowledged that he could not 13 tell Charlene's mother the name of the student because "we don't want somebody 14 to get hurt."¹⁰⁶ Wolf also agreed that it would be inappropriate to disclose the race 15 of the other student involved in the inappropriate PDA because "there's not a 16 reason to."¹⁰⁷ Given that the Defendants themselves contend that the gender of 17 Charlene's girlfriend had nothing to do with discipline against her, there is no 18 plausible explanation as to why he could not and did not simply explain that 19 Charlene's behavior occurred with "another student."

20 Finally, the Court should rebuff Defendants' attempt to relitigate their 21 argument, previously rejected by this Court, that because Charlene was "openly 22 lesbian" on campus, she had no reasonable expectation of privacy with respect to 23 her parents learning her sexual orientation. C.N. v. Wolf, 410 F. Supp. 2d 894, 903 24

25 students holding hands on campus, that those students "might be" gay. Wolf 26 (Ex. 29) 280:23-281:6. Wolf also maintained that the statement made on the 27 Boys & Girls Club referral regarding Charlene's "persistent public display of 28 affection with another girl" gave him no reason to believe that Charlene "might be" gay. Wolf (Ex. 29) 315:3-316:1.

1 (C.D. Cal. 2005). The facts on this Motion mirror the allegations of the complaint 2 this Court found sufficient: the evidence shows that Charlene was openly gay on 3 campus, that her mother did not know that she was gay, and that her mother had no 4 reason to know about her same-sex conduct. As this Court previously held, “[t]he 5 fact that an event is not wholly private does not mean that an individual has no 6 interest in limiting disclosure or dissemination of information.” Id. (following U.S.
7 Dept. of Justice v. Reporters Comm., 489 U.S. 749, 770, 109 S. Ct. 1468, 1480

9 Court’s prior order.¹⁰⁸

10 D. A Genuine Issue Of Fact Exists As To Whether Defendants Have 11 An Adequate Policy Preventing Discrimination On The Basis Of 12 Sexual Orientation.¹⁰⁹

13 Defendants insist that they have adequate policies to prevent discrimination.
14 Antidiscrimination policies are adequate, however, only if they are disseminated to 15 those enforcing the rules. Flores v. Morgan Hill Unified Sch. Dist., 324 F.3d 1130, 16 1136 (9th Cir. 2003) (denying summary judgment where school officials failed to 17 adequately train and notify campus monitors and other employees on policies 18 against sexual orientation discrimination). Defendants do not assert that they 19 disseminate any antidiscrimination policy, and the evidence suggests that they do 20 not. Several SHS staff members indicated that they were unaware of a school 21 policy specifically prohibiting discrimination on the basis of sexual orientation.¹¹⁰

22 Defendants’ failure to adopt adequate safeguards against discrimination 23 results also from the vagueness of the PDA rules. Jauregui, 852 F.2d at 1136; see

24 ¹⁰⁸ The Defendants’ attempt to distinguish the holding in Reporters Committee on 25 the ground that the “rap-sheet” at issue there was a “matter of past concern” is 26 misplaced. That fact was only relevant to the government’s interest in disclosing the information, and had no bearing on the obvious conclusion that such information is protected by the right to privacy. 489 U.S. at 780.

27 ¹⁰⁹ This issue is relevant to Plaintiffs’ First, Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, and Seventh Claims for Relief.

28 ¹¹⁰ Shaw (Ex. 21) 31:14-18; Garcia (Ex. 4) 14:11-24; McCustion (Ex. 10) 40:15-24.

1 also United States v. Tabacca, 924 F.2d 906, 913 (9th Cir. 1991) (“A statute is 2 void for vagueness if it fails to give adequate notice to people of ordinary 3 intelligence of what conduct is prohibited, or if it invites arbitrary and 4 discriminatory enforcement”). Students, as well as those individuals who are 5 charged with enforcing that rule, indicate that although the rule is based on 6 “common sense,” there is no real consensus as to the kinds of PDA that are 7 prohibited. As a result, nothing in the rule prevents SHS staff from disciplining 8 same-sex couples for behavior that is tolerated when engaged in by opposite-sex 9 couples. And the evidence indicates that they do.

10 E. A Genuine Issue Of Fact Exists As To Whether Defendants Had 11 Notice Of Wolf’s Discrimination And Took Adequate Remedial
12 Action.¹¹¹

13 When it denied Defendants’ Motion to Dismiss, the Court acknowledged the 14 following allegations stated a discrimination claim under § 1983: 1) Charlene 15 “complained to Schwalm about the allegedly unequal treatment that she received at 16 Santiago High;” 2) “[N]either Schwalm, Baird, nor Lewis took action to stop or 17 remedy the alleged harassment and discrimination;” and 3) “Baird, Lewis and 18 Schwalm failed to enact an ‘adequate formal or informal policy to ensure that 19 Santiago High is providing a learning environment free from discrimination,’ as 20 required by California Education Code § 260.” C.N., 410 F. Supp. 2d at 899-900.
21 Plaintiffs have substantive evidence supporting these allegations.

22 Defendants suggest that “it must be logical” to infer adequate remedial 23 action from the fact that Charlene was not subject to further discipline during her 24 senior year.¹¹² However, the case Defendants cite for this proposition fails to 25 support it. Moreover, Defendants cannot point to any specific remedial action that 26

27 ¹¹¹ This issue is relevant to Plaintiffs’ First, Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, and Seventh Claims for Relief.

28 ¹¹² Mot. at 14:4-9 (citing Davis v. Monroe County Bd. of Educ., 526 U.S. 629, 685, 119 S. Ct. 1661, 1691 (U.S. 1999)).

1 they have taken. Indeed, such an inference would not be “logical” at all, since the 2 school’s failure to discipline Charlene could have been the result of her own 3 decision to refrain from PDA when confronted with disparate scrutiny from school 4 officials, combined with the very real threat of additional discipline.

5 Defendants insist that the individual board members were never notified 6 about Charlene’s complaint. The evidence belies that assertion. Defendants 7 Lewis, Baird, Schwalm, and the Board were on notice of SHS’s discrimination of 8 Charlene as early as July 2005.¹¹³ In August 2005, Charlene submitted a formal 9 complaint directly to Schwalm, who acted on behalf of the Board as its agent.¹¹⁴

10 Defendants knew it was illegal to discriminate based on sexual 11 orientation.¹¹⁵ But although Defendants Lewis and Baird assert that they 12 investigated Charlene’s claim,¹¹⁶ they ultimately concluded that Wolf’s actions 13 were consistent with Board policy.¹¹⁷ Although Plaintiffs attempted to discover 14 what actions, if any, the Board subsequently took, Defendants asserted a Brown 15 Act privilege and would not respond to counsel’s questions.¹¹⁸ Defendants admit, 16 however, that the Board has made no effort to create a written PDA policy.¹¹⁹ Nor 17 did the Board adopt a policy on disclosure of sexual orientation to parents.¹²⁰

18 Defendants also suggest that they cannot be blamed for failing to remedy the 19 discrimination because Charlene did not complete a formal complaint form or 20 await a formal rejection of her claim by the District. It is well-settled, however, 21 that “a plaintiff does not have to exhaust administrative remedies before bringing a 22 section 1983 action.” Lowe, 775 F.2d at 1011.

1 F. A Genuine Issue Of Material Fact Exists As To Whether 2 Defendants Are Entitled To Qualified Immunity.¹²¹

3 In determining whether a government official is entitled to qualified 4 immunity, the court's task is to determine whether the pre-existing law provided 5 "fair warning" that the official's conduct was unlawful. Cox v. Roskelly, 359 F.3d 6 1105, 1112 (9th Cir. 2004).¹²² When it ruled on Defendants' Motion to Dismiss, 7 the Court held that the constitutional rights asserted by Charlene were well-8 established, such that if those rights were violated, Defendants will not be entitled 9 to qualified immunity unless there was "an objectively reasonable basis for the 10 [them] to believe that [their] conduct was lawful." C.N., 410 F. Supp. 2d at 899.

11 With respect to Plaintiffs' discrimination and free expression claims, 12 Defendants admit that they knew it was illegal to discriminate based on sexual 13 orientation.¹²³ This fact alone eliminates a qualified immunity claim. Moreover, 14 as is discussed above, Defendants nevertheless implemented and ratified discipline
15 against Charlene for engaging in "affection with another female student."¹²⁴

16 With respect to Plaintiffs' privacy claims, the law is clear that the 17 constitution protects against disclosure of one's sexual orientation. Sterling v.
18 Borough of Minersville, 232 F.3d 190, 197-98 (3rd Cir. 2000) (denying qualified 19 immunity for police officer who threatened to disclose to grandfather the sexual 20 orientation of teenager, who subsequently committed suicide).¹²⁵ The Court should 21 reject Defendants' contention that Wolf lacked "fair warning" that disclosing the

22 _____
23 ¹²¹ This is relevant to Plaintiffs' First, Second, Third, and Ninth Claims for Relief.

24 ¹²² In making its determination, the court should examine a wide range of relevant 25 legal authority. Frederick v. Morse, 439 F.3d 1114, 1123-1124 (9th Cir. 2006).
26 In determining whether the law violated was "clearly established," there need 27 not exist any case with identical or even "materially similar" facts. Hope v.
28 Pelzer, 536 U.S. 730, 739-741, 122 S. Ct. 2508, 2515-16 (2002).

¹²³ Wolf (Ex. 29) 14:11-14; Baird (Ex. 1) 60:23-25.

¹²⁴ Wolf (Ex. 29) 157:1-12 (emphasis added); March 28, 2005 email from Ben Wolf to Donna Sievers, Ex. 36.

¹²⁵ Indeed, Wolf also had ample warning more close at hand, since Defendants have conceded that it is against District policy to disclose a student's sexual orientation without her permission.

1 gender of the student Charlene allegedly kissed, made out with, and 2 inappropriately touched “a lot” would be an unlawful disclosure of sexual 3 orientation. As discussed above, courts have repeatedly held that one can 4 communicate that another is gay without speaking the words “gay,” “lesbian,” or 5 “homosexual,” and acknowledged that same-sex conduct, especially “sexual” 6 conduct, and gay status are inextricably intertwined.

7 G. Defendants Are Not Entitled To Discretionary Acts Immunity.¹²⁶

8 In suggesting that they are entitled to discretionary acts immunity, 9 Defendants rehash the same argument that the Court rejected when it ruled on 10 Defendants’ Motion to Dismiss. There, citing Nicole M. v. Martinez Unified Sch.
11 Dist., 964 F. Supp. 1369, 1389 (N.D. Cal. 1997), Defendants argued that all 12 decisions made by school officials regarding discipline of students are necessarily 13 discretionary.¹²⁷ The Court rejected the argument, pointing out that unlike in 14 Nicole M., the discrimination at issue here is alleged to have been conducted by 15 school officials, rather than other students. C.N., 410 F. Supp. 2d at 903.

16 Now, Defendants do not set forth any facts or evidence to undermine these 17 prior determinations by the Court. Charlene’s allegations of discrimination are still 18 directed at school officials, not students, and Defendants have made no attempt to 19 characterize their disciplinary practices as “quasi-legislative policy-making.”¹²⁸ 20 The Court should confirm its prior determination that Defendants are not entitled 21 to discretionary acts immunity.

22 IV. CONCLUSION

23 For the reasons stated above, the Plaintiffs respectfully request that the Court 24 deny Defendants’ Motion in its entirety.

26 ¹²⁶ This issue is relevant to Plaintiffs’, Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Seventh, Eighth and 27 Ninth Claims for Relief.
